

Letters to the Editor, Woodinville Weekly, February 23, 2015

Fifty shades of green.

That is what can be seen while walking amongst the evergreen trees and shrubs in Wellington Park. And now the buds of new leaves and blossoms are beginning to present, adding their various hues. Soon wildflowers will be springing forth with their contrasting colors, beckoning the birds to join them. It's a welcoming open space to explore, a jewel, nestled in a neighborhood setting.

NeighborsToSave WellingtonPark.com continues to advocate to preserve these rolling hills from being bulldozed and covered with artificial turf and asphalt. Visit the park through the photos on our website and join in on www.neighborstosave wellingtonpark.com, Facebook www.facebook.com/SaveWellingtonPark, and Twitter twitter.com/Wellington_NSWP.

V.M.