Liturgical Books

Care must be taken that the liturgical books - that is, the books which are actually used in the celebration of the Sacred Liturgy - particularly the Book of the Gospels and the Lectionary, which are intended for the proclamation of the Word of God and hence enjoy special veneration, and the liturgical books from which the prayer of the Church is offered, really serve as signs and symbols of heavenly realities. Hence they are to be truly worthy, dignified, and beautiful, and are to be treated with care and reverence.

The lector or reader should always proclaim the Word of God from a Lectionary, and not from a disposable missalette or sheet of paper, out of the reverence due to the Word of God being proclaimed. Thus in proceeding to the ambo or lectern to proclaim the reading, the lector should not carry a missalette or sheet of paper. The Lectionary should always be carefully prepared at the ambo in advance.

Candles

Candles, which are required at most liturgical celebration out of reverence and on account of the festiveness of the celebration, are to be appropriately placed either on or around the altar in a manner that respects tradition. Candles for liturgical use should be made of wax. To safeguard authenticity and the full symbolism of light, electric lights are not permitted as a substitute for candles.

The Paschal Candle has a special dignity as the symbol of the “light of Christ, rising in glory” and as befits its importance, it should be a genuine candle made of beeswax, as announced in the text of the Easter Proclamation, and be free from any artificial constructions. It should be ritually prepared at the Easter Vigil as indicated in the Missal and the discipline regarding its use until the Easter following as indicated in the liturgical books should be carefully observed.
