

musical notes

“It Brings Me Joy To Share Music With Others!”

Stephanie Parker, Learn With Stephanie Burbury Close

“I put my students’ needs first,” says Highgrove resident Stephanie Parker, “I will do whatever is necessary to help them reach their goals.” Having taught piano since she was 14, Parker knows a thing or two about the way her pupils absorb the music. “No two students learn in exactly the same way, therefore no two lessons are alike!”

The consistent message Stephanie hears from parents is how much their children love coming to lessons! She teaches piano, voice, Spanish, and English as a Second Language, and asserts reading music is her strong point. “I help students discover their strengths, and then we capitalize on them! When I help students discover strategies and techniques to improve their performance, it motivates them to reach for even higher goals.” Stephanie says working with young children and teens are the best, as they are usually very willing to try something new, and when they ‘get it’ there are fist-bumps all around!

The love of music has taken Stephanie all over the world - from performing in historic theatres all over Europe, to competing in the Pennsylvania Junior Miss Program with classical piano as her talent. That desire continues today, as she’s teaching herself the trombone in her spare time. But when she’s not practicing music, she’s crafting, baking, reading, watching movies with her hubby... or you might just find her on her motorcycle!

For more information about lessons, please visit
LearnWithStephanie.com, or call 770-630-5284

Do you have a musical talent or know someone who does? Email your nomination to atl@n2pub.com.