October 21, 2021 – Hionas Gallery is pleased to present TEN, a group show featuring small individual works by a selection of artists who have previously exhibited with the gallery since its inception in 2011. TEN is the inaugural exhibition for Hionas' new storefront gallery space, located at 94 Walker Street in Tribeca.

Featured artists include Karlos Carcamo, Robert Otto Epstein, John Franklin, Eleni Giannapolou, Robert Goldman, Dennis Hollingsworth, Jill Levine, Ariane Lopez-Huici, Stephen Maine, Bobbie Oliver, David Rhodes, Ivo Ringe, Rebecca Smith, Gary Stephan, Jason Stopa, Melanie Vote, and Joan Waltemath.

TEN marks a spiritual return to Hionas' roots. Beginning in the spring of 2011, Peter Hionas opened a modest storefront gallery on Franklin Street in Tribeca, not much bigger than the current space, and established a mission to invite contemporary and emerging artists to participate in monthly exhibitions to showcase their latest work and artistic vision. One year and 12 solo shows later, the gallery presented the group show ONE, featuring select individual works by all artists showcased in the gallery's inaugural year. Today, 10 years, four gallery spaces, and dozens of solo and group exhibitions later, Hionas returns to Tribeca with a new 200 square-foot space, which features double-height ceilings and a street-facing gallery wall to draw in viewers.

TEN brings together an all-star international lineup of artists working in all variety of media – including painting, photography, sculpture, and installation – who have previously exhibited at Hionas over the years, most of them in multiple shows and several in more than one space. According to Hionas, "We've put on incredible shows and featured so many fantastic artists throughout the years, all in small spaces where you can really engage with their work. I want to keep that going, and this new jewel box space of ours on Walker Street feels like home."
