This provides students the opportunity to earn graduation credits within Oregon's standards-based system by demonstrating what they know and can do. Students may demonstrate proficiency through classroom work or documentation of learning experiences outside of school, or through a combination of these means. Policies to award credit for proficiency are created and implemented by local school districts in accordance with OAR 581-022-1131. Proficiency-Based Teaching and Learning in Oregon: An Evolution from State Policy to Practice: This paper describes the evolution of Oregon's state policy "Credit for Proficiency" to a K-12 proficiency-based teaching and learning system focused on teachers' instructional practice and student learning. |

Closing this gap will be accomplished through a combination of initiatives and programs that provide skill and job training to youth, expand training opportunities and skill advancement for Oregonians already in the workforce, and identify projects designed to increase the housing supply in rural areas. Leaving your community should not be the only path to a good job and a prosperous future for an individual or family. The programs developed and implemented through Future Ready Oregon will create equitable options for youth and adults that enable them to see and access opportunities that match their interests, are available in their communities and are supported with local education and work-based learning strategies. These programs will ensure that traditionally underserved people and populations are able to move to a place of access and outcomes through supports for individuals, families and communities, in partnership with businesses. This work is guided by the following principles: transferable skills, self-sufficiency, connection to employers, career path, and equity. Programs included in Future Ready Oregon will be evaluated through criteria based on these principles to ensure alignment with the vision. |

| Jobdango   | https://jobdango.com/   | Northwest Job board for Oregon and Washington. Jobdango is locally owned and operated right here in the Northwest. In 2001 our local economy was struggling much like it is right now. We built Jobdango during that season with a passion and vision to serve Northwest companies and jobseekers with the best local resource for job advertising. Plus, make a real long lasting impact in our economy and region. At the time the only place for local jobs was the newspaper, but over the last 8 years times have radically changed. There are only a few struggling newspapers left and very few people are using them anymore. The vast majority of jobseekers are online, and that means everybody, computer programmers to painters, mechanics to cooks, entry level to c level, you name it, they're on line. Jobdango has strategically positioned our site for our clients to reach these local jobseekers. Jobdango focuses on investing our time, efforts, and finances back into our local community. With a lot of hard work and dedication we have become the largest job advertiser in the Northwest as well as the best place for a local company to advertise jobs. |

| Oregon's Youth Transition Program  | https://ytp.uoregon.edu/   | Established in 1990, the Oregon Youth Transition Program (YTP) is a collaborative partnership between the office of Vocational Rehabilitation, Oregon Department of Education, and the University of Oregon. Overview YTP was developed initially in seven high schools as a federal systems change grant. Today, YTP serves about 1500 students in approximately 120 Oregon high schools. VR contracts with the University of Oregon to provide training and technical assistance to school and rehabilitation personnel statewide to support implementation of YTP. Contracts with local school districts are performance based. YTP sites are expected to meet performance benchmarks based on key milestones within the VR system – application to VR, development of an individual plan for employment (IPE), and engagement in employment, training, or a combination of employment and training upon exiting the YTP pattern of service. A site's performance on program benchmarks influences potential future funding. YTP staff collaborate with VR to create mechanisms to ensure the provision of pre-employment transition services (Pre-ETS), and provide core YTP Grant activities and supports in their districts. Participants Local YTP staff serve youth with disabilities who need support beyond services typically offered through the general or special education program to achieve their secondary and post-secondary employment and continuing education goals. YTP participants are representative of all youth with disabilities nationally with respect to gender and primary disability categories. The majority of youth in the program experience a number of additional individual, family, or school system barriers such as poor academic skills, limited social and independent living skills, negative job experiences, and low levels of family involvement or support. NOTE: Any student eligible or potentially eligible for VR services may participate in pre-employment transition services (Pre-ETS) without becoming a client of VR. All YTP participants who receive core services must be eligible for VR services and become clients of VR. Any young adult with a disability who has a barrier to employment can become a VR client without being served in the YTP. Services The YTP provides year-round services to youth typically during the last two years of high school and continuing into the early transition years after leaving high school. |
