Dear Mr. Handa,

Thank you for joining us at last month's FORTUNE 500 Forum; we were delighted to be able to showcase the first Legatum FORTUNE Technology Prize amongst such an august group of business leaders, thinkers and influencers.

The idea that business is a powerful driver of sustainable development is increasingly becoming accepted wisdom, and the proven achievements of the nine finalists for the Technology Prize simply serve to underline the power of human, intellectual and financial capital when effectively allocated (their stories may be reviewed at www.legatum.com/techprize).

The $1 million 2008 Technology Prize was won by Comat Technologies, a company that provides easy access to essential information, such as citizen records and entitlement benefits, and to skills training in rural India, and Microfinance International which provides innovative payment solutions that serve the unbanked by linking financial institutions, remittance senders and recipients.

As investors, we seek exceptional returns from every one of our activities, whether in the global capital markets, in programs that advance the expansion of knowledge, or in those that promote sustainable human development. We believe that the return on our initial investment in the Technology Prize will be multiplied many times over by diverting attention – and investment funding - towards those companies and individuals who are busy creating value for their businesses and the developing communities they serve.

We wish you a prosperous year to come.

Yours sincerely,
LEGATUM LIMITED
