

DEEP SIX

Party all night at the world's first underwater club.

By SASHA GONZALES

How low will you go for a great party? At Subsix in the Maldives, you can get down in style, with only glass windows separating you from a moonlit Indian Ocean. Opened in October, the world's first underwater club is smack in the middle of nature's playground, 500m offshore and 6m below the surface of the sea. Here you can dance the night away while magnificent manta rays frolic gracefully with you in the background, and sip on cocktails that are as colourful and exotic as the tropical fish swimming around you.

World music spun by renowned DJs dominates in this chic space, which is decked out in indigo and blue. Accessible only by boat, Subsix is part of the luxurious Niyama Resort on Dhaalu Atoll, which is a 40-minute seaplane journey from Malé. Right above the club is the Edge restaurant and lounge, which offers al fresco dining under the stars and panoramic views of the sea.

Subsix, Dhaalu Atoll, Maldives, +960 676 2828, www.niyama.peraquum.com

Party responsibly: Subsix was built on land before being carefully submerged into the ocean to safeguard the fragile underwater environment.