

So Seeks The Mind, So Yearns The Heart

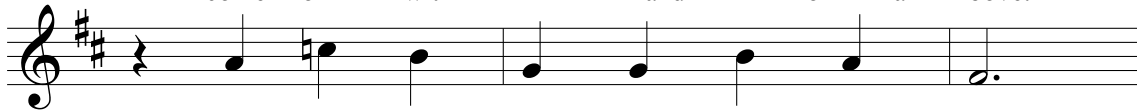

William Flanders

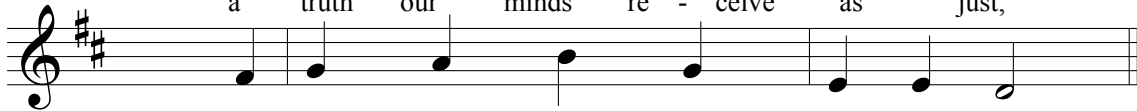

1. So seeks the mind, so yearns the heart
2. We look to sci - ence or to creed,
3. Some may, for proof, to Scrip - ture look,
4. No less than mys - tery we pur - sue,
5. This is the Christ, this truth in love,

for what is true in fact, in art,
af - ter our in - terest or our need.
the Good, the an - cient hon - ored Book.
as old as old and new as new,
come from with - in and "from a - bove:"

be - yond what's read, be - yond what's told:
But creed gives way, as sci - ence will:
Yet words are born of hu - man stock,
a love that God a - lone im - parts a truth our minds re - ceive as just,

a truth that, giv - en all, will hold.
one trapped in time, one nev - er still.
and truth e - ludes a lit - eral lock.
that, wel - comed, dwells in minds and hearts.
a truth our hearts re - ceive and trust.
