IMPROVE YOUR CHILD'S CHANCES OF ADMISSION

Sophomore year is the best time for students to begin the college planning process to prepare for getting into the college of their choice. Families who begin the college planning process in 10th grade substantially improve the chances of getting into the school of their choice. But what to do? Successful applicants start the process early: they map out which courses make sense for them, build a strong resume, plan college visit strategy, set milestones, and experience less stress. Dr. Tony Di Giacomo of Novella Prep shares his proven strategies in a free, information-packed one hour seminar for parents of Sophomores seeking strategies for getting their children into the right college.

IN THIS 1 HOUR SESSION, YOU WILL LEARN:

- ✓ Learn do's and don'ts for when to take tests and how many times
- ✓ Get tips for selecting the right combination of tests
- ✓ Develop an individualized timetable with critical milestones
- ✓ See how course selection relates to admission
- ✓ Learn how to use the resume to identify the best extracurriculars
- ✓ Getting ahead: Summer tips for getting a head start for junior year

Biography: Dr. Tony Di Giacomo, Founder and Executive Director of Novella Prep, presents proven techniques supported by his experience from college admissions, testing at the College Board, and training as an educator.
