Things To Think About

- What areas of study interest you?
  - Engineering, business, teaching, psychology, biology, etc.
- What schools have these programs?
- Do the schools that are recruiting me offer these programs?
- What if I don't know what I want to do?
  - You may want to attend a school that has diverse degree offerings
- Make sure you like the school and not just a coach
- Don't worry about what everyone else says, be happy and enjoy it while it lasts
  - Drive, Desire & Determination (and Grades)
- You have to work at it; it is not handed to you. Teams are made of stars from different schools, and coaches are continuously recruiting better players.

Things To Think About

- Coaches and schools are penalized for students who do not maintain their athletic eligibility from term to term. If you are not getting good grades in high school, coaches may not want to take a chance on you for their program.
- Student-athletes are scrutinized and held accountable more than other students on campus. Newspapers are quick to use athletes to get their point across.
- Social media use does impact recruiting. Your image is important to coaches because it is now reflective of them, their program and the university.
