

ROADMAP

To Junior High School Success

Navigating through Peer Pressure, the Social Scene & Making Positive Choices

A FREE workshop for parents and students of LPPS making the move to middle school

You wouldn't take a road trip without making sure your car was ready for the venture. Would you plan a trip without making preparations once you were there? Let's not send our kids off to junior high without having those conversations about the challenges they may face. Middle school can be filled with lots of fun if our kids know what to expect and how to avoid hurdles along the way.

The move to middle school is an important time in your child's life. You can play a key role in your child's success on this new journey. Contrary to what some may believe, children need your guidance more than ever at this level. Success begins with your involvement, both academically and socially. Students will face new academic demands as well as HUGE changes in their social scene. This can be a challenging time for both parents and children. This workshop hopes to provide you with current information on facing peer pressure, navigating the social scene, and making positive choices to promote better success within the middle school setting.
