BOARD MESSAGE

MONICA JENSEN PRESIDENT

Hello everyone!

The Danish Place has reopened and we are thrilled. We are lucky that Mark Mogensen has stepped forward to take this on during Covid. The restaurant is now licensed and we hope that everyone will start coming back to support the business. We know they are working on adding more Danish meals to the dinner menu. Like all restaurants, finding staff is especially challenging right now, and the Danish Place is no exception. They are looking for help, if you happen to know anyone looking for work in the service industry.

Bad news: the septic system for Apartments 1-6 has failed and will need to be replaced. Engineers are currently working with Rick Rowan to establish what we need to replace it. This is going to be expensive and we may need to fundraise. Thank to Rick Rowan for your expertise as an engineer and for pumping out the apartments twice a week since this problem arose, which has almost been a year now. We are so lucky to have your help.

We received a generous donation from Anne Lise Miller & family to improve the tired playground. You are thoughtful and wonderful! We repainted the playground and removed or fixed anything broken, got some new bikes and made a bike shed.

Thank you to the volunteers that did the improvements! The kids are loving it!

Thank you to all the volunteers that came to the work parties! We are busy planning the Nordic Market. It's a great event and we really want to keep it going! We need help selling memberships, parking, crowd control and general help on both Sat Dec 4 and Sun Dec 5! Please come forward so that we can pull off this fun Jul event! We need you! Keep safe and stay healthy!

Monica

We need Nordic Market Volunteers

Can you help?

Christmas is the time for giving, and what better way than volunteering at our Nordic Market! We are looking for a few volunteers to help out on Sunday, December 5th. Please contact any of the Board members or you may email lisaolsen@gmail.com. Here are some of our volunteer opportunities:

Kim Johannsen: The making of Viking Shields

Recently I met Kim Johannsen, a Viking history enthusiast, at his home in Cowichan Bay, BC, who, as an artist, creates Viking shields as a hobby for his friends. Each shield is researched and customized to suit the personality, or coat of arms, of the lucky person he gifts them to. Making each shield is a 20-30 hour process. Kim starts by cutting from a sheet of 1/2" G1S plywood into a 30" circle using a jigsaw. Real Viking shields were made from several planks of wood, but to mimic this effect, Kim cuts fine lines into the plywood, creating the "plank-like" effect. He then jigsaw cuts the wood hand grip for the back, from a piece of 2" X 2" wood and bolts it on.

Viking Shields Step by Step

He primes or stains the wood, and creates the design. For the shield boss (the steel center that protects the hand) he buys parts from www.viking-shield.com. He then uses spray paint or acrylic to hand paint the design, which makes the shields come alive as a beautiful work of art.

Kim's Danish Heritage:

Born to Danes (Sysse Pedersen and Peter Johannsen), who immigrated to Vancouver in 1960, Kim is proud of his Danish heritage, speaks the language and cooks Danish food and is particularly proud of his Red Cabbage! He loves everything Viking, especially themed costume parties, and loves to introduce his friends to smørrebrød. He's visited the Roskilde

Viking Museum twice, been to the Icelandic Viking Museum and a number of historical Viking sites in Danmark and plans to visit York (Yorvik) in England and do the Viking Cruise in the Baltic after COVID.

During the visit he told me a fascinating story about his father who came from Åbenrå in the southern Jutland area of Danmark, near the German border. When his father, Peter (now passed) developed dementia, he reverted to his Danish mother tongue and expressed an unusual fear of German soldiers that he saw everywhere. Kim had thought this quite odd as while growing up his father had never mentioned any trauma relating to the war or Germans.

Peter had many scary flashbacks while in a care home be they could not figure out why. Recently Kim came in contact with a Danish genealogy expert he met online. Soon he knew everything about his family tree dating back to the 1800's. This revealed that his father's father, Nis Kruse, who actually served with the German Army in WWI, had married a Jewish woman named Johanne Rosenthal. Kim recalls while growing up that his Dad said that he believed he had "Spanish: blood in him and he would joke about that as he tanned very quickly when out in the sun, not like most Danes, including Kim! So Kim's Dad had taken the family secret to the grave. With the anti-semitism of that era and Germans persecuting maternal Jews in WW2, it became a matter of survival for the whole family to deny Jewish ancestry. This family secret made total sense, after the fact, and explained Peter's fears under dementia, and it must have been a huge burden and such a closely guarded secret that he never even shared it with his wife, his friends or his children.

Interestingly, Nis Kruse, Kim's great grandfather, had been a soldier for the German Army in WWI as Danes were conscripted in the Schlesweig-Holstein region near the border at that time. The Johannsen family's call for service continued in subsequent generations with Kim's father serving in the Danish Army in the 1950's, Kim in the Canadian Navy in the 80's and now Kim's son, Erik Johannsen, serving as an Infantry Reservist in the Canadian Scottish Regiment in Victoria, BC. Here's some extra irony; Erik's unit, The Can Scotts, fought with distinction in Mons, Belgium, in WWI, likely against the very unit that his great, great, grandfather served in but on the opposite side! What a great visit with Kim and his wife Jitka. It is always fun to meet other Danes in Canada, hear their stories, and I am now inspired to make a Viking shield for myself!

THE DANISH PLACE OPENS

Chef Mark Mogensen is very excited to be branching out from Black Birch Restaurant to now also operate The Danish Place. Mark brings more than 30 years of cooking experience to The Danish Place and will be offering both traditional and modern Danish dishes.

Mark received his chef training at George Brown College (after studying Chemistry at Waterloo University) and along the way earned his Red Seal. Since 2007, he has owned and operated Black Birch Restaurant in Mono, Ontario. Prior to that, his varied career has included cooking at tony Yorkville restaurants (even cooking for stars such as Marlon Brando and Matthew Broderick), as well as on a small cruise ship in northern Ontario, and at St. Anne's Spa.

Born in Canada, Mark's father is from Thorsager, Denmark near Aarhus, and his mother is of Ukrainian descent. Mark's grandparents immigrated from Denmark to Canada in 1948 on one of the earliest transatlantic commercial flights direct to Canada, settling first in Lucan near London, and then moving to Burlington.

Mark and his large extended Danish family have been coming to Sunset Villa since the beginning, and many have been members for decades. The Mogensen and Bolt clan were well known for their picnic style lunches in the park on Constitution Day. Many joined them, including the Pastor from the Danish Lutheran Church in Toronto. Mark's grandparents Henry and Petra Mogensen and his father Ebe are all laid to rest in the Mindepark, the urn cemetery adjacent to Sunset Villa. Mark makes his own rullepølse, as well as rye bread, and leverpostejis. He is really looking forward to sharing his love of his Danish heritage and of Danish foods by providing other authentic Danish foods for everyone to enjoy!

'Rye bread' for diabetics, low carb/keto diet

1 net carb per slice!

Do you love an open faced sandwich but hate the carbs? Try Dimpflmeier's Power Slice bread! Not only is it a great product with protein, but when under your favourite Danish toppings it is a great alternative to high carb breads. As well, it is the perfect shape and thickness for a traditional Danish sandwich.

You can buy direct from Dimpflmeier's in Toronto, www.dimpflmeierbakery.com or order online from

Thanks

Thank you to all the volunteers that came out to the two work parties, and to those that have now been "chainsaw certified".

The camping season is now over. Thank you to Sue Hansen for being Camp Master? Thank you also to all campers who volunteered this year to keep the park beautiful.
