Student "JR"

Entry level math levels was 5.1 exit level math was 9.5.

The student's goal was to achieve a certification in welding from the local community college, but she did not meet the math requirements. After studying with a CLC math tutor, she successfully enrolled in and passed the certification class with the highest scores. In addition, she secured a job on a large, bridge-building project. Later, she was sent to American Welding Society (AWS) training to become a Certified Welding Inspector (CWI). Her current assignment is as a head welding inspector responsible for the east coast of the country.
