MUSIC 101

Enrichment Program

The perfect companion to private lessons, our enrichment program provides even more learning opportunities! Students are encouraged to listen to high-quality performances online and live in the community through our monthly Lifelong Listeners Newsletter. Students who document their listening by bringing in worksheets or concert programs are rewarded using a point system. In addition, the enrichment program offers group classes:

Scales n' Skills

Playing an instrument requires a wide variety of physical and mental skills. In this class, students will review and explore those skills in new ways while making friends with others who play their instrument. Concepts will include music theory, ear-training, listening, and improvisation.

Spotlight Listening

Learn about composers, musical styles, music history, world music traditions, and more in this guided listening class! Each month, students are invited to explore topics from the Lifelong Listeners Newsletter and earn listener points in person with their peers and a member of our faculty.

Performance Class

Watch a master performer at work and strengthen your own performance skills! Performing on stage is a skill that takes frequent practice to master. In this class, students build confidence by performing informally for a small group of supportive peers and teachers. Each class opens with a performance and presentation by a faculty member.

Attend one class or attend them all!

Best of all, every Music 101 private lesson student receives FREE admission to:

3 Scales n' Skills Classes

2 Spotlight Listening Classes

1 Performance Class

Admission to additional classes may be purchased for a small fee.
