"Y" CAMPAIGN NOV. 13th - 27th

Basic organization for the annual YMCA financial campaign in the Lachine-Dorval area has now been completed, according to Dave Loudoun, division chairman.

At a recent meeting with the zone chairmen, Mr. Loudoun indicated that the area had been divided into ten zones this year -- eight residential, one special names and one industrial.

Altogether they will be some 200 volunteers working in the forthcoming campaign from November 13th - 27th. They will canvass hundreds of homes as well as business and industrial establishments to reach their objective of $7,200.

Mr. Loudoun explained that the objective for most zones would be slightly higher this year since it had been necessary to increase the total objective for 1961 for the Lachine-Dorval area.

The zone chairmen were confident that the residents in the area would respond favorably, especially since it was obvious that the local "Y" would have more demands placed on its facilities by the growing number of teen-agers in the community.

JOHN PRATT REPORTS FROM OTTAWA

I am continuing this week with a discussion of the Canadian policy on nuclear survival and shelters. It must be realized that even a minimum program for mass nuclear shelters on a national basis would consume a colossal amount of money and effort. Obviously then it would be sheer folly to embark upon such a program if a war can be avoided, it is also equally obvious that we must look at the other side of the picture. If war cannot be avoided and our country is to be subjected to a nuclear attack, then our people must be prepared to protect themselves against it, and our leaders must be prepared to show them what to do and how to do it. The only alternative, for those who survive a nuclear blast but are subjected to heavy and continued fallout, is to die a more or less slow and agonising death, except for those to whom a quick act of suicide is morally acceptable.

It must be seen then that a nuclear policy is one that can only be implemented progressively by stages, depending on whether the drift of international relations is towards or away from a war in which nuclear weapons may be used. The time required for a government to implement a definite policy on nuclear survival is therefore also dependent upon the rate at which these international relations resolve themselves either for or against such a war. In other words no one really knows, including governments, exactly what is going to happen or when it is going to happen. The great danger is that the deterioration of international relations could very well move much more rapidly than the ponderous machinery of democratic government in making the gargantuan arrangements necessary for even a reasonable chance of mass survival.

The rapid development of nuclear weapons and their means of delivery have already led the Canadian government to dispense with the original policy of a forced mass evacuation of large centres. The present policy is a voluntary evacuation of non-essential personnel from such centres, depending on how far ahead we are warned of any impending attack. We have not yet reached the stage of constructing mass shelters for the public but we have reached the stage where those who wish to build their own shelters are encouraged to do so, and detailed instructions on how to do this have been made available. There are, of course, many people who are not in a position to construct their own shelters, including those who live in rented property and those who simply have not got the money. Consideration must also be given to thousands of people in large centres who may be away from their homes or places of employment and who may have possibly only a few moments in which to take shelter.

We may presume, therefore, that the next stage of our nuclear survival policy, a stage that may unfortunately be astronomically expensive for the taxpayers, could very well be the development of a system of mass public shelters, completely stocked with all the necessities, in every potential target area right across the country. Such a radical and expensive operation could only be justified by the government if the international situation were to develop to the point where we would be faced with the eventuality of an unavoidable war. The conundrum that puzzles and frustrates all the affected governments is how to make a faultless decision far enough ahead of time to get such a gigantic shelter program completed in preparation for modern warfare, which may develop almost overnight or which may, because of the common fear of mutual destruction, never develop at all. God help the country that needlessly embarks upon such a colossal expensive program, but should the need suddenly arise, God help the country that does not!

By Paul McKenna Davis

The recent seven thousand dollar federal government grant to Dorval's Civil Defence organization points up the happy fact that Dorval's hard-working CD organizers and co-ordinators are gaining recognition. When the Emergency Measures Organization made the grant, they spoke in glowing terms of the Lakeshore city's contribution to the civil defence cause, and well they might. There are few communities across Canada which measure up, in time and effort - and results achieved - with Dorval's CD organization. Certainly, some of the major Canadian cities, including metropolitan Montreal, could do with some of the spirit and commonsense shown by Dorval in its approach to the survival problem - especially when we consider that cities of great size are natural target areas.

Capt. Pierre Gariepy, Dorval's acting police and fire chief, and CD co-ordinator, is putting the grant to work in the purchase of a truck that will be exclusively earmarked for civil defense manoeuvres; and two new groups of volunteers are currently training in first aid and rescue work.

I wrote some time ago that I didn't believe the cold war would ever reach the nuclear warfare stage. It's unthinkable. But preparedness and know-how in the event of disaster must definitely be preferred to optimism.

The story about the horse that was stolen because the barn door was open is a familiar one worth remembering.

The other day someone asked my why Dorval hasn't got a legitimate theatre of its own -- real estate, that it, devoted to housing semi-professional and amateur groups engaged in putting on plays and musical comedies.

There are, of course, school gymnasiums and auditoriums along the Lakeshore, and there have been desultory attempts in the past to drum up promoter-interest in building theatre property. I'm afraid, however, we shan't see too much local interest in theatre until the day when Dorval finally gets an all-purpose arena-auditorium, provided by federal and provincial subsidy, with some assistance from interested subscribers.

No theatre or theatre group in Canada exists without some form of subsidy, mainly by the good graces of the Canada Council. Television has, by and large, taken the customer away from the ticket window and put him in the armchair. And even established groups like La Comedie Canadienne, Theatre du Nouveau Monde and the MRT are steady losers from year to year.

The thought of an eventual Dorval or Lakeshore centre to house the performing arts, while an ephemeral one, is still not beyond possibility. When such a building comes to pass we could expect an upsurge in theatre interest and new groups springing up to try their luck at everything from East Lynne to The Merchant of Venice.

Now a bad idea. It might mean the juniors away from Gunsmoke and The Untouchables.

Montreal Children's Theatre at Lachine

Under the auspices of the Lachine Civic Theatre, a matinee performance of the well-known classic "Anne of Green Gables," will be presented by the Montreal Children's Theatre, in Lachine High School Auditorium, on Saturday, November 25th, commencing at 2:15 p.m.

Since 1958, when the Civic Theatre began to sponsor children's performances, enjoyment has been given to many hundreds of our young citizens, and it is anticipated that another crowded auditorium will greet this fourth production on the Lakeshore.

Walter Wakefield will again be seen in the leading character role. He will play Matthew Cuthbert. For over twenty years, Mr. Wakefield has been a tower of strength to the Children's Theatre productions. Well-known on the Lakeshore, he took the part of Old Gobbo in the Lachine Civic Theatre production of "The Merchant of Venice," last November. He has been a featured player on the Lakeshore stage since

BY HELICOPTER: You have not seen Canada until you have done the tour, cruising over prairies, lakes, cities at about 60 miles an hour, in a helicopter! This was the word from Walter Edwards of Dorval who reports that seeing Canada by helicopter is the opportunity of a life-time. On a nine day assignment for Canadian Aero Photography, a subsidiary of Dorval based Autair, he flew out to Vancouver by T.C.A. and had the return trip, Calgary to Montreal by helicopter. The route was planned for taking photographs of industrial plants, airviews of principal cities and a variety of black and white and color photos for magazines and periodicals.

The helicopter was a source of interest wherever they went. Even in this day and age it is not every day a roadside service station has a helicopter drop in for gas; nor does the motel manager cope regularly with, "Where should we park the helicopter?" Mr. Edwards said that at Brooks, Alberta, where they had landed at a service station the owner gave them the keys to his car so they could get to the nearest restaurant for lunch; at Gladstone, Manitoba, he took pictures of the service station attendant scraping frost from the "bubble" of the helicopter. A fair exchange was made near Swift Current, when a driver at a service station expressed a desire to go aloft. Frank took over the wheel of the new car (at this point it seemed good to be on the ground for a while), and the Saskatchewanite, an ex-Spitfire pilot, had his first helicopter ride as he directed pilot Frank Nobels to the nearest motel.

Most lively stop was at Fort Frances, Ont., where they picked out a Motel occupied by a large Shriners gathering, and were guests that evening at the convention dinner and dance. While out to get their picture stories, pilot Frank Nobels and photographer Edwards found themselves and the helicopter newsworthy; they were photographed for T.V. at Medicine Hat, heard on the radio at Swift Current, and interviewed for the Port Arthur Times. A helicopter dropping in is a good news item any day, and, I imagine, a wonderful conversation piece for service station operators across the country who really had something different to tell wives who asked the routine, "What happened today?"

ARTISTS IN THE NEWS: Local artists Dori Thomson and Lois Eastman Coates were both very successful exhibitors at the V.O.N. Art Exhibit. Before the show Mrs. Thomson's beautiful Red Maples Painting (seen at the Stewart Hall Exhibit) was on display in the window of Eatons, beside a painting by Oscar de Lall, R.C.A. one of her former teachers, and later was the first painting sold at the exhibit. Mrs. Thomson and Mrs. Coates were also honoured by an invitation to exhibit at Gemst Sherbrooke Studio where a new exhibit opened last Wednesday. Work by Canada's foremost artists occupied the top gallery during the exhibit... The November Show by Dori Thomson at Holiday Inn provides a wonderful opportunity to see her work in very attractive surroundings.

HERE AND THERE: Seen the other night at Ballantyne Park, the Dorval East Giants, listening with rapt attention while Ray Ciccia, well known football player and presently one of the line coaches for the Alouettes, gave them a coaching session..... Parents, and other Pop Warner supporters enjoyed themselves at the dance at St. Louis School, Saturday night.. Award Night for the girls softball teams will be held at Pine Beach Hall, Nov. 17 at 8:00 P.M. St. Veronica's Parish with Mr. Ed. Wakeling as Chairman of the Federation of Catholic Charities Drive had chalked up a total collection of $3200 by last Sunday..... Dorval Firemen were called out to stand-by in case of fire by a Safety conscious Mount Royal Fuel man who had completed a furnace adjustment where there had been an overflow of oil.

The Lachine Alumni Singers are practising every Thursday evening for their traditional "Carols For Christmas" on Dec. 16 under the direction of Mr. Ted McLearn. The Singers, incorporated in 1958 find that their group is being swelled by a number of students who have completed their college training and other courses and have more time to devote to the singing. The Alumni also have two recordings on sale; the records are heard over CFOX and make a wonderful preview of the choir skill of the group..... When the Junior League of Montreal presents its Golden Anniversary Revue "Raze the Roof" at the Comedie Canadienne on Nov. 8, 9, and 10, the following Dorvalites will be participating, Mrs. Earle Vining, Lilac Ave., Mrs. Roger Hewson, Malcolm Circle, and Mrs. T.R. Anthony Malcolm, Stream Ave. The show stages its review around an amusing and topical situation, the City Fathers having decided to tear down one of Montreal's prominent hotels, and finding themselves involved in some fast paced action. Tickets are available at the box office of Comedie Canadienne.

YOUNG CANADA'S BOOK WEEK: Young Canada's Book Week will be marked by the Dorval Civic Library in a Book Display at the Dorval United Church Bazaar, Nov. 11. A large selection of very attractive reading will be displayed in the interests of promoting good reading for young people. Mr. Miller of the National Film Board will also be on hand to explain the procedures in connection with the films on loan through the library. Book Marks which list reading material, according to countries they deal with, will be souvenirs to spark reading interest.

An impression gathered from a visit to the Dorval Civic Library this week was of the number of people who work there. When I had called Mrs. Lachance on Sunday to make the appointment I found that she was at the library. With her were six workers from a Junior Auxiliary. On Monday when I was at the library there were two volunteers doing typing, one working at library cards, Sandra Williamson works Sat. afternoons in the children's section. Another student, Ken Ransom works on Tuesday nights. These are just a few of the volunteers who have taken over special duties at the library. A regular "open" night at the library is something of an eye-opener too. A surprising number of Dorvalites have discovered the library students are using it for research for their long essays and other assignments. Young Canada's Book Week should provide the incentive to pay the library a visit and see for yourself what strides have been made in this endeavour.

GAINTS CLINCH 1st PLACE

The final league games of the season were played last Saturday with the Giants meeting the Bombers in a game which decided first place in the league standings and the Riders meeting the Lions.

In the first game, a closely fought affair which saw only one touchdown scored, Giants clinched first place by defeating the Bombers 7-0. The only score in the game came in the third quarter with a converted touchdown by Giant Jeff Thompson. The play started deep in Giant territory with Thompson running 75 yds. for the major.

In the Riders - Lions game, star halfback Dave Featherstonehaugh of the Riders scored all the points, running wide for two TDs and taking a 25yd. pass to paydirt for the third and last TD. But for the first and fourth quarter defensive lapses and a little more offensive drive on the part of the Lions, the score would have been much closer. Lion tackling and punting was especially good.

REPORT ON MEN'S FALL FASHIONS

Men's fashions change today as decisively and quickly as women's fashions. More emphasis is being placed on good appearance of men's dress at both high school and college level, states Dr. Dorothy Siegert Lyle, Director of Consumer Relations, National Institute of Drycleaning, Silver Spring, Maryland. Young men going into business or the professions have come to realize that a feeling of good appearance is important not only for its psychological effect, but also in terms of job advancement. The young man's look for Fall 1961 is easy, casual, pared down but not skimpy. Trousers are slim but not tight. Shoulders are natural. Simplicity in design is the keynote to good dress. The All-American collegiate look is touched with a British influence. And what about color? Charcoal is coming back in suits, top coats and slacks. Black and navy are returning for dress suits and top coats. Lighter blues are good in slacks, sweaters, sports coats and jackets. The olive shade so popular this past summer is changing to blue-olive. There are subdued tweedy mixtures of olive, blue, and brown. Russet is leading as a highlight color. Sport shirts are brighter, gayer. Solid shades are brighter and lighter. New woven stripes in brilliant colors are counterbalanced with small discreet prints. Sweaters run the gamut from white, bone and grey to oxford and medium blue. Scandinavian patterns are much in evidence.
