A Year in Review: The Victim Services Professional Network [VSPN]

June 4th, 2012, begins the annual five day training week for another Roper Victim Assistance Academy. Much planning and preparation takes place prior to recruitment, orientation, and workshop facilitation. On the first day, participants applications now match their faces, relationships begin to be forged, and memories that will last a lifetime start to be built. It is the charge of the Victim Services Professional Network (VSPN), the alumni association of RVAAM, to help make this week a success. This charge will be accomplished, however this year it will be bitter-sweet. As VSPN graciously welcomes a new Executive Board, it will also bid a fond farewell to a number of its board members.

The Roper Victim Assistance Academy alumni nominated Co-Chairpersons, Linda Wright Fair and William "Archie" Griffin, to serve a two-year term beginning in 2008. At the completion of their first term, the alumni reelected them to serve another two-year term. The experience and knowledge gained through this leadership opportunity was priceless.

These two individuals served the organization faithfully and tirelessly, and always focused on how they could "get the job done." Their efforts were matched by an amazing group of board members who supported and embraced Linda and Archie's vision, and together worked as a team to spearhead a number of successful campaigns.

One of the most significant accomplishments this group made was to create a new identity for the organization that would help to further distinguish its mission from the mission of the Academy. The alumni association was developed in response to the request of the inaugural graduating class from the 2004 RVAAM Academy. It was their desire to be advocates beyond the Academy experience by fostering relationships, building networks, and influencing policy to improve the field of victim services. Therefore to honor this mission, the board wanted to rebrand the RVAAM Alumni Association. To do this, the board developed a campaign and solicited ideas from RVAAM alumni to help create a new logo and name for its alumni association.

So many wonderful ideas were submitted, but the board settled on the Victim Services Professional Network [VSPN], and awarded the alum who submitted this name with a gift card to Giant Food. Archie then worked diligently to create a new logo for VSPN, which was premiered back in 2010. The board and fellow alums have since spent the past two years promoting VSPN in the field, and for their efforts, we believe everyone now knows who we are and what we do.

VSPN has worked diligently to nurture alumni relationships by hosting annual summer and fall gatherings for alumni and their families. Some of these outings included a cookout, a holiday party, and a group sporting event. VSPN also found ways to engage with the community and assist others in need. One of the highlights was the successful fundraiser VSPN held in December to help a local family with their Christmas wish list. Thanks to the planning and creativity of Archie Griffin, alumni went on a Mystery Train Ride that included dinner and a shopping trip out to western Maryland. It was a rousing success, and all those who attended had a wonderful time! But the real pleasure came when VSPN was able to present the designated family, a single mother of three children and guardian

EDITOR'S CORNER

Spring Greetings Alumni!

How exciting, we are coming up on our 9th Academy! Wow! I just love Academy time, it is so exciting and I for one learn something new every year I attend. And I can certainly tell you that the Academy definitely gets better each and every year thanks to the dedication of its amazing staff!

We are back at Bon Secours Spiritual Center this year. This is such a wonderful atmosphere for our week of training, from the fantastic accommodations (yes, there are private rooms for each participant!) to the wonderful homemade food. It truly is a place that strives to nurture each guests' spirit while they are visiting. So I would encourage each and every one of you to set aside some time to come to this year's Academy, whether it's to help out, or to attend this year's advanced training, or to attend the awards banquet on Thursday evening (something new this year!).

All of us can help the Academy in another way though. I would like to challenge each and every one of you to recruit at least one person to attend the Academy this year. Who better to share the benefits of this training with others than those who experienced it first hand! And because we want to continue to professionalize the field of Victim Services, we want to encourage as many of our colleagues as possible to complete comprehensive trainings such as the Academy, so that we can ensure every victim we serve receives the absolute best care.

I look forward to seeing you all in Marriottsville this June at this year's Academy!

Although we have a virtual library at our fingertips every time we turn on the computer, we often lose sight of the forest through the trees just trying to navigate the world-wide web. Here are a few sites that relate to this issue's "Just a Thought" ... happy surfing!

The Roper Victim Assistance Academy of Maryland [RVAAM] - The

Academy offers a rare opportunity to live, work, study, and interact with victim service providers from all areas of advocacy, from all over the state. While it is assumed that participants will have had previous training in their area of specialization, the Academy provides a fundamental overview of the entire field of advocacy, including: victimology, victim rights, and victim assistance for residents in Maryland. Sessions are led by recognized leaders and practitioners in the field of victimology, criminal justice, and victim rights, and focuses on skill-building and best practices. Throughout the week, participants are provided with a variety of resource materials they can take back to their agency, including a comprehensive RVAAM curriculum text that covers more than thirty subject areas.

Alumni Updates

It seems like only yesterday when we were all together at the Academy. But in a blink of an eye another year has passed us by. Here's just a snapshot of some of the special events and milestones our alums have experienced since we last met...

Look at Our Movers & Shakers!

Debbie Bradley (Class of 2005) - Debbie will be celebrating her 50th birthday on May 28th! To celebrate, her husband has planned to take her on a cruise - what a lucky gal! We hope you have a wonderful time Debbie and we'll be thinking of you on your birthday!

Diane Champe (Class of 2010) - Diane will be filmed this spring for a documentary about adult survivors of child abuse and the judicial system. For her part, Diane will be discussing such issues as how to prepare survivors of child abuse for trial, obstacles in getting survivor issues addressed by the court, and needed reforms. Thank you Diane for continuing to bring victims needs to the forefront!

Keith Gethers (Class of 2011) - Keith recently joined the Editorial Board of the Academy Forum and will be researching programs to highlight in the newsletter's "Best Practices" section each quarter. Welcome aboard Keith!

Bridgette Harwood (Class of 2009) - The Editorial Board of the Academy Forum Newsletter would like to extend a very special thank you to Bridgette for serving as an assistant editor with the newsletter for the past three years. Bridgette put together the "Best Practices" article each quarter and always found such amazing programs to highlight. Bridgette is leaving the Maryland Crime Victims Resource Center and is moving to another position in victim services in the DC area. As a result, she will no longer be able to continue her editorial duties with the Academy Forum. You will be greatly missed Bridgette - we wish you all the best in your new endeavors!

Sarah Rickter (Class of 2004) - After over ten years of service as the Domestic Violence Victim/Witness Coordinator in Carroll County's State's Attorney's Office, Sarah will be leaving to start a new job as an investigator with the Department of Defense. Congratulations Sarah on your new career, and we wish you all the best!

Diane Wilkins-Charles (Class of 2007) - Diane's new husband, Laurent Charles, finally arrived in the U.S. and the newlyweds are enjoying their time together. We wish the two of you many years of happiness!

Why the Academy is for me: Two criminal justice professionals share how the Roper Victim Assistance Academy of Maryland helped guide them on their paths of victim advocacy

Tips for healthy victim advocacy I learned at the Academy - by Kim Truitt

I received my certification from the Roper Victim Assistance Academy of Maryland (RVAAM) in May 2011. For me, the Academy was more than just a training, it was a once in a lifetime experience. When I attended, I was working at the Maryland Crime Victims Resource Center as a victim advocate, and I currently am a law student at the University of Baltimore. The knowledge and skills I gained during my week at the Academy not only have helped me as a victim advocate, but also as a law student.

My classmates at the Academy were comprised of other victim advocates, social workers, law enforcement officers, faith leaders, and students - all of whom came together to discuss how we can better help crime victims. By having such a diverse set of individuals with varying degrees of experience and different perspectives, we were able to work together as a group to generate ideas and solutions that many of us have struggled with when dealing with victims of crime.

One of the most important lessons I took with me from the Academy was the importance of self-care. Every day we take on other people's problems, and internalize a lot of what we have hear or see without really realizing it. I had no idea how much trauma I have encountered and taken on vicariously through my work as a victim advocate. The Academy provided us with helpful techniques on how to help ourselves while helping others, and thereby reduce our chance of burnout. Throughout the week we practiced many of these techniques, and I found myself able to "let go" and relax. More importantly, I still use many of these techniques today when I get stressed with law school or upset from cases I am assigned at work.

Another benefit of being a part of the Academy is the networking opportunities you have with your fellow peers and the trainers. Since the Academy, I have reached out to a number of my classmates to help me with some of my cases. By obtaining the help and advice of my peers, I have been able to provide much better care for my clients.

I am so grateful for my time at the Academy and all of the valuable information I learned. It was an amazing week and is an experience I will never forget.

The Power of the Academy - by Keith Gethers

Twenty-three years ago, I joined the Prince George’s County Police Department for the same reason many young men and women do: to make a difference. On one assignment after another, however, I found myself in some of the busiest and most dangerous areas of the county that was plagued by many of the common ills of urban life. For example, I would routinely go to the scene of a routine domestic disturbance and restore peace by convincing one party to leave, only to be called back to the same residence repeatedly. During that first year on the job, I learned that making a difference was truly a relative idea.

So I grew accustomed to enjoying small successes, and it wasn’t long before I got the hang of it - lending a helping hand, listening a little longer, taking detours to check on the young and the old. These were all things that conceivably could be linked to making a difference, one person at a time. I realized that helping others was my primary reason for showing up to work. But then suddenly, it was all over. I thought my opportunity to help was gone with my unexpected retirement.

In 2011, however, I was hired by the Maryland Crime Victim Resource Center and was given the opportunity to attend the Roper Victim Assistance Academy. I anticipated that during the five day training I would learn a number of things, such as advocacy and how to provide direct assistance to victims. Well, day one of the Academy was the only day that met my original expectations.

The compelling nature of days two through five of the Academy was absolutely life changing for me. First, through classroom activities I discovered I was part of an extremely diverse group of peers (male, female, young, old, Black, White, Hispanic, Christian, Jewish, Atheist) brought together by our common interest in assisting others. Second, the cadre of supportive staffers and volunteers demonstrated through both word and deed what it is to truly be a service provider: interjecting their perspectives where appropriate, providing guidance during and after class, rendering much-needed assistance during the numerous times when students were emotionally overwhelmed by the subject matter. And finally, the expert level of instruction we received revealed the many harsh realities that crime victims are forced to face, and the challenges providers deal with while rendering assistance to them.

Almost every block of instruction drew me further into a web of interest that has now become a passion. By the end of the week, I had a new group of friends, a new outlook on life, and renewed sense of excitement. Thanks to my Academy experience, I hope to embark on a new career path as a therapist. Once again, I know I can make a difference - one person at a time.

Members of VSPN also attended Maryland State Legislative hearings, various conferences and trainings on victim issues, including events sponsored by the Baltimore Child Abuse Center and Rape Aggression Defense system; and participated in Baltimore City's State's Attorney's annual Fund Run.

At this time of year, VSPN is directing its focus on assisting the RVAAM staff in preparing for this year's Academy. As such, we are encouraging all of our members to participate in our annual "Power of One" campaign, which strives to have every alumni recruit at least one colleague to attend this year's Academy. Please share a copy of this newsletter with your colleagues and direct them to the RVAAM website where they can download an application.

In addition to the advanced training the RVAAM staff have arranged for alumni, the Executive Board of VSPN have also worked with Academy staff to provide numerous opportunities for alumni to engage with this year's students, including a mentoring lunch, help facilitate small group activities during various training sessions, and to help lead some of the recreational activities. We hope you will join us at the Academy, whether it is for just a few hours, or for all of the alumni events.

We look forward to seeing you!

The VSPN Executive Board.

A Special Note of Thanks

On behalf of Archie and myself, we want to thank the RVAAM faculty and staff - Dr. Debra Stanley, Dr. Heather Pfeifer, Mr. Dave Thomas, and Ms. Elaine Whitman - for their direction and guidance they provided us during our tenure as Co-Chairs of VSPN. These past four years have been some of the most rewarding experiences in our careers and we are truly blessed to have been a part of such a wonderful endeavor.

We would also like to thank all of our board members for their time, dedication, and commitment to VSPN. We could not have gotten here without you. We treasure the friendships we developed with each of you - Alicia Johnson-Davis (Secretary), Debbie Bradley (Academy Forum Editor; Chair of Certification Committee), Diana Abramowski (Treasurer), Brian Murray, David Johnson, Ruby Nelson, Faye Evans, and Laurie Dulle. Although our tenure as Co-Chairs has come to an end, we know the relationships we have developed with each of you will last a lifetime.

We are excited to see the next group of leaders elected to the Executive Board take the baton and continue to build VSPN's standing in the community. We wish you all the best, and we'll be here to support you in all your efforts!

Sincerely,

Linda Wright Fair and William "Archie" Griffin

It has been a privilege to have served on the Executive Board of VSPN for these past five years. I graduated from the 2007 Academy class, and I had such a wonderful experience that I decided to run for a position on the board and was elected to serve as its Secretary. Serving on the board has been such a rewarding and fun experience. I served with such a great team of people who were all committed to the Academy and supporting victim service professionals.

During my tenure as Secretary, I was responsible to getting information out to you. I understand the importance of "information sharing" in this field, and the need for victim service professionals to stay connected, thus I always strove to get the information to you in a timely manner. Although I am resigning from my position as Secretary, I will continue to be a part of this wonderful organization, and help in any way that I can. In fact, I encourage everyone to be involved and stay connected because it really does make a difference with helping and serving the needs of victims of crime.

It has been a pleasure serving as Secretary and I look forward to seeing all of you at upcoming VSPN events!

Sincerely,

Alicia Johnson Davis
