Thank you once again to the Racine Concert Band's Music Director and Conductor Mark Eichner, these fine musicians, the dedicated volunteers, and the financial supporters who together make it possible for us to enjoy this delightful series year after year.

Sincerely,

Mayor Cory Mason

Welcome to our 101st season of free concerts!

The Racine Concert Band performed at J.I. Case High School on May 25 and were joined by the students for the finale of the concert.

The Racine Concert Band is thrilled to return to the Kiwanis Amphitheater stage at the Racine Zoo to present our 101st season of free concerts this summer. So, pull up your lawn chair or blanket and enjoy our 1512th - 1518th free concerts against the backdrop of beautiful Lake Michigan.

The Racine Concert Band presents diverse programs of high artistic quality, in settings that are readily accessible to the community. The Racine Concert Band is a year-round performing arts organization maintaining a tradition of free summer concerts for the residents and visitors to the City of Racine.

The 41-member band plays a seven-concert season at the Racine Zoo, plus three additional high school concerts during the school year, along with leading off the 4th of July parade each year.

The band is led by the group's music director and conductor Mark Eichner, who celebrates his 21st year as the leader of the band this year. Amazingly, he's only the fifth conductor.

Henry Schulte established himself as a local bandleader after the turn of the century, and his band played regularly at various parks in Racine. He even received financial support from the city as early as 1911 when the city council budget included a line item for $57.50.

His popularity continued into the 1920s, when he asked the Racine City Council for an annual appropriation to present a series of 12 free concerts in city parks. The request was granted and the Racine Park Board Band was born.

Concerts were held at Horlick Park, Washington Park, Lake Park, North Beach and East Park on Sunday afternoons and Thursday evenings.

The Park Board Band started playing concerts at the zoo in 1944 and concerts at the North Beach gazebo were paused in 1952 - returning occasionally during subsequent years. The concerts continued at Washington Park through 1964, until the bandshell deteriorated and had to be torn down.

With the purchase of a "Wenger Showmobile" in 1966, the band took its show on the road. They played at parks around the city on Wednesdays and played at the zoo on Sunday afternoons.

In 1967, the band board petitioned the Parks and Recreation Department to change the name to the Racine Municipal Band.

The portable stage was replaced with the Kiwanis Memorial Amphitheater at the zoo in 1984 and was built, in part, to become a permanent home for the band.

In 1996, the band changed its name to Racine Concert Band.

After Henry Schulte died in November 1932, his son Frederick took over the band the following year. John Opferkuch took over the band in 1943 and retired in 1973.

When Eisch learned of Opferkuch's imminent retirement, the Racine instrumental music teacher threw his hat in the ring and was hired. His tenure lasted until 2001 and Eichner took over the following year.

Many thanks to the patrons of the Racine Concert Band who responded to appeals over the past year to support the centennial celebration with the purchase of chairs, shirts, folders, arrangements, bongos, concert/commission and use where needed. Funds are still needed to purchase additional shirts ($25 each) and chairs ($55 each). You'll notice the addition of these new amenities this season, but it's not too late to make a contribution.

To make a donation, send a check and a note designating the use of your gift (if desired) to Racine Concert Band, City Hall Annex, Room 15, 800 Center St., Racine, WI 53403 or online at racineconcertband.com.
