The Y & H Soda Foundation is an anti-poverty organization committed to uplifting the full participation and prosperity of low-income and underserved residents of Alameda and Contra Costa Counties. We aspire to create a more just, prosperous and caring community in the East Bay. We believe that every resident deserves an equal opportunity to develop to his or her fullest potential and contribute to community life. Since our founding 56 years ago, the Y & H Soda Foundation has become a trusted philanthropic leader in the East Bay known for helping to build the capacity of nonprofit organizations, especially in Contra Costa County. We address emergent issues by convening funders, nonprofits, businesses and government representatives to achieve a more significant impact on the lives and livelihoods of residents. We are committed to the principles and promise of inclusion, equity and justice for all as we carry out the mission set by our founders. Over the past 13 years, the Y & H Soda Foundation has been led by a respected, thoughtful, and visionary leader who is retiring this spring. Our Board of Directors now seeks an innovative, strategic and visionary Chief Executive Officer to build on past program accomplishments, deepen our racial diversity and equity practice, and lead us into a new phase of growth and impact.

ABOUT THE Y & H SODA FOUNDATION

The Y & H Soda Foundation was established in 1964 by Charles (Chet) Soda and his wife, Helen C. Soda. Deeply rooted in their Catholic faith and values, Chet and Helen envisioned a permanent resource to lift the strengths and capacities that inherently exist in communities across their beloved East Bay. This vision was inspired not only by Chet’s experience as a successful businessman in construction, but also as a widely recognized civic leader with a strong commitment to people, especially those struggling with poverty and isolation. The founders were also keenly aware that different times require different solutions to issues. Thus, Chet and Helen established a mission with the flexibility to respond to evolving needs.

With time, the Y & H Soda Foundation also evolved and we are about to enter our third phase of development. In the first phase, we directed our grantmaking to organizations that focused on Catholic education and safety net support. Our close connections to these early grantees and growing knowledge of philanthropic tools ushered the Foundation into our second and current developmental phase. We recognize that poverty in our communities has many root causes, from individual and family circumstance to historical systems and structures that facilitate economic opportunity for some, while preventing it for others. Consequently, with assets of $120 million, a staff of five and an annual grants budget of $5 million, we currently work to make a difference at the individual, community and policy levels by focusing on five strategic priorities: Family Economic Success; Grassroots Community Organizing; Immigration Legal Services; Safety Net Innovation; and Nonprofit Sector Development.

Program accomplishments include: convening the Contra Costa Safety Net Task Force, a multisector effort to respond to the Great Recession and focus attention on the issue of growing suburban poverty; the East Contra Costa STRONG Initiative, a nonprofit leadership development and capacity building initiative; and Stand Together Contra Costa, a public/private collaborative legal services and community education project responding to rising threats on immigrant rights and the related trauma to families in our community. Through our Family Economic Success program, we have contributed to building a cadre of economic and workforce development organizations in Alameda and Contra Costa Counties skilled at improving the economic security of low-income residents. As a result, they are better positioned to take on bolder economic initiatives.

In the spirit of continuous learning and dedication to the communities we serve, the Y&H Soda Foundation recently concluded a two-year, organization-wide training in racial diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI). This important endeavor was also motivated by changing demographics, a rapidly changing economy, and a widening income gap evident in Alameda and Contra Costa Counties as in other communities across the nation. With the help of a DEI consultant, we deepened our understanding and commitment to applying a DEI lens to our work, and developed an equity framework to guide future grantmaking and operations.

Now, at this pivotal moment in our development, the Y & H Soda Foundation seeks a new Chief Executive Officer to lead the next phase of impact and commitment to support low-income residents in the East Bay to develop their fullest potential to grow, learn, thrive and contribute to community life. The new CEO will be a trusted and strategic advisor to the Board of Directors to advance our vision and mission.

ABOUT THE POSITION

The successful candidate will be a proven leader in her/his field with strong communication and analytical skills, and a track record of building formal collaborative relationships across sectors. She/he will have substantial experience applying innovative and strategic approaches in one or more of our strategic priority areas. The candidate will possess working knowledge of how policy and associated systems and structures play out at both the legislative and grass roots levels. Equally important, preferred candidates will possess knowledge and understanding of racial justice, social equity, racial and cultural difference, systemic and institutional racial bias, and sensitivity to issues concerning communities of color, as well as other diverse groups.

The new CEO will share the Y & H Soda Foundation’s fundamental values – compassion for those struggling; dignity and respect for individuals; learning from others through their life experiences and knowledge; and integrity in all we do – as well as our passion for the Foundation’s mission. In addition, she/he will have the ability to comfortably navigate within a range of community and professional circles, from the volunteer-run nonprofit in a low-income neighborhood to the board rooms of business, civic and legislative leaders. Our candidate will also bring to our close-knit office environment in Moraga the ability to promote an inclusive and supportive workplace culture.

While no one candidate will embody 100% of the qualifications we seek, the successful candidate will possess many of those stated above as well as the following professional and personal attributes, experiences and qualifications.
