SPEAKER

President's Message

Sally Steele
President

We are officially in the Holiday Season! Oh My! To most of us, that means the remainder of the year is going to be a blur as we prepare for guests for the holidays, travel to see family members, decorate our homes, start/end Christmas shopping, attend many holiday parties, buy pumpkin pies at Costco, roast turkey with all the trimmings, and eat too much! Does that describe your home?

We are all so blessed, and with blessings comes gratitude. Here are 7 Reasons Why Gratitude Can Change Your Life (Wanderlust Worker): 1) Gratitude shifts your focus, 2) It improves the quality of your life, 3) Being grateful makes you feel happier, 4) Having gratitude reduces your innermost fears, 5) It strengthens and enhances your faith, 6) Gratitude gives you peace of mind, 7) It emboldens you to reach for your goals.

As I reflect upon Thanksgiving, I am grateful for Navajo Canyon RWF! During the past 2 years as your President, I've been filled with joy serving this organization. Words can't express how I feel seeing your smiling, laughing faces each month at our luncheon meetings. To be a part of such an amazing group of active women who are like-minded and genuine is truly incredible. Thank you everyone for all the friendships, encouragement, and accolades I've received from you!

Our luncheon meeting on November 14th is going to be jam-packed! We have filled all 80 seats, plus have more than 10 on the waiting list! One important topic of discussion will be the restructure of CFRW and how we are affected. Many of you may not know what this is all about, we will have presentation and next steps to share with you.

See you Tuesday at the Brig!

Sally

Did you know...over the first six months of 2017, the Republican National Committee pulled in $75 million, nearly twice as much money as the Democratic National Committee, which raised $38 million? The Democrat Party is $3.5 million in the red while the Republicans are out-raising the Dems by 2 to 1. Republicans have quietly taken a big edge over Democrats when it comes to small-dollar fundraising. In an effort to take back the House and Senate and regain their voter appeal, the Democrat leaders have latched onto a new set of ideas to attract voters: free college tuition, raising the minimum wage to $15, and Medicare for all. Outside of the Democrat base, these ideas have tested poorly among voters. The party's agenda is simply just too bi-coastal, too elite and too out-of-touch for large voter appeal.

The Democrats haven't figured out yet that they will never get to a House majority without winning back many of the Trump voters. The Democrat urban professional elites who run the party want nothing to do with white working class voters that voted for the Republicans and Donald Trump. Their condescension and snobbery know no bounds when it comes to everyday working people.

In 2018, the Democrats will be defending 10 Senate seats in states that Trump won and will need to flip 24 House seats to take control of that chamber. Even if they were to win every single 2018 House and Senate race for seats representing places that Hillary Clinton won, they could still fall short of the House majority and lose five Senate seats. If Democrats don't refine their pitch to alienated white voters, Trump might win re-election with ease.

Now, the Republicans aren't without their own problems, but at least they are a national party. For all his faults, Trump was able to virtually get the entire GOP base to vote for him in 2016. However, it is important that Republicans not get complacent. Republican approval numbers are under water, a lot of it fueled by their own rank-and-file voters who are sick of the inaction on the Hill over health care, immigration, tax reform, and jobs. Luckily for now, the Democrats are a lot worse off. We need to take advantage of this situation and support our Republican candidates however we can. Remember that a Republican win anywhere is a win for us all. What can you do right now? Let the Republicans on the Hill know that we want action on Trump's agenda immediately. The Senate has over 200 bills from the House waiting to be acted on...what are they doing back there?

We are still flying high with happiness and gratitude over the phenomenal success of this year's Fashion Show....Shine, Wine, & Dine! Thanks to all of YOU who attended, who brought guests, who donated money and/or opportunity baskets, who served as fashion models and escorts, and who enthusiastically helped on the committee. This is truly an example of "Together We're Better!"

The opportunity baskets were stunningly gorgeous, the Holiday Items Road Show was full of treasures, and the fabulous assortment of "Buy it Now" restaurant cards sold out! The food and desserts were delicious, the outdoor setting was spectacular, and the weather couldn't have been more perfect. Pinch me....I think I am dreaming!

We will be displaying slide show of photos taken at the Fashion Show at our November luncheon. Here are some highlights of the event:

2 New Members who joined Navajo Canyon at Fashion Show

3 Male Model Escorts

PLEASE JOIN ME ON NOVEMBER 15 ON THE CONCOURSE at 10am FOR THE NEXT NEW CITIZENS CEREMONIES.

THE MORE REPUBLICANS WE HAVE, THE EASIER IT IS TO FEND OFF THE DEMORATS!!!

GOOD NEWS!!! October was the first month, since the change in Administration, to show President Trump's welcoming video to the new citizens!! And they still flock to the Democrat booth!! We need lots more help (volunteers) to help steer them to the party of freedom, values and prosperity!

Come have some fun with us! And, it's a lot easier, the more Republicans we have to help!

Contact me for more info or directions.

President Sally Steele, at the National Conference in PA.

CHAPLAIN'S REPORT

November 2017

*"Stay with me, do not be afraid, for he who seeks my life seeks your life;
for you are safe with me.*

I Samuel 22.23

For those of you at the September meeting: We are fine, nothing was taken & no one was hurt. We told the Gardaí & the hotel that we were extremely honored that we were able to have come 5,124 miles to have a special adventure!

Now, how to relate our adventure to NCRWF & a chaplain report. It relates to sight & sound; details & listening. Those two items don't always get the best attention in our lives.

We "hear" but don't always listen to the statements, sounds, or tones of the situation. We don't listen for underlying things: fear, confusion, deceit. When a friend talks to you, are you using eye contact or are you checking email? Do you override the dialogue with listening for your text ringer? On a phone call with emotions, do you hear the background noise that can bring you to your friend faster?

We "look" but don't always see. We glance at the guy in the hoodie. Did you see the sadness in the friends face & eyes or did you notice the waitress pouring coffee? Did you watch how they described their most special moment or again, did you look at your emails & texts?

My challenge to you is to be more watchful & soundful in your life. I'm not saying that I am perfect (God & most of you know I'm not even close) but I try really hard to watch, see, hear anything I can. I walk at night & I listen for noises. I look at people that I pass & try to glean all the detail I can. With that said, Rick felt pity for the uninvited guest at our home as I could describe him head to toe, the lack of smoke or alcohol smell, & his voice. God is our ultimate protector but He does need us to hone our skills to assist in our own protection.

Again, we're fine, nothing was taken & no one was hurt (except the visitor that within 24 hours had been found, arrested, charged, & arraigned & four days later in court & now in jail serving his sentence.)

Blessings to you all.

Ginny Wisley
