Gospel: Lk 4: 21-30.

“Is Anyone Really Listening?”

The vision of Jesus was a prophetic one; it was a call to change the world by changing the hearts and minds of those living within it. This call was a radical and social response to life and God, and to one another. The problem that Jesus faced was a narrowness of vision on the part of those around him. But more significant is the fact that they may have "heard" what Jesus was saying, but they weren't really "listening." One cannot respond to a call if one doesn't first listen.

The reading from Corinthians is, of course, St. Paul's reflection on Love. It is found in that part of the First Letter to the Corinthians where Paul speaks about the nature of the Christian community to the church of Corinth, which was divided over many issues. Paul tells them that all gifts flow from the Holy Spirit. To one the Spirit gives the gift of wisdom. To another he gives the gift of understanding. Some can work miracles. Others can prophecy. All the members of the Church are gifted with different talents. One gift is not more important than another and one member of the community is not more important than another. Together with both their divisions and their gifts they comprise the unified Body of Christ.

The revelation that Jesus came to bring is much more than dogmatic pronouncements or theological definitions of who the Father is and what God is all about. Jesus makes it very clear that we must open our ears to the revelation that He brings. We must look at the world around us and at one another through His eyes, and live by the prophetic vision of His Gospel. It is that which allows us to claim that we belong to Him.
