

Jackson Hole News & Guide

June 22, 2016

More Arts- Briefly- June 22-29

Billy Arnold

(Courtesy Photo by Art Center Jackson WY.)

Pac-Man sculpture erected

The stone men are here.

Well, the man composed of stone by artist Craig Gray is here, at the Center for the Arts. The new public art sculpture, composed of worn river rock, is now on display at the Center's Sculpture Pad.

According to the Center's website, the sculpture is symbolic of those traveling in search of a better life. Gray, the sculptor, comes to Jackson from Key West, Florida, where he has been carving stone for a quarter-century.

Pac-Man will be on display for the next year.