The Total Population Continues Its Rapid Growth

In the thirty years between 1790 and 1820, America’s population has grown explosively, from 3.9 million to 9.6 million, an increase of over $10 \%$ per year, tracing to birth rates, not immigration.

Total U.S. Population (000)

Compared to the three global powers of Europe, the U.S. is already closing in on both Spain and its former parent, England.

All three "segments" of the U.S. population have expanded over the decades - whites, free blacks and the African slaves.

Growth In The Deep South Lags Behind

A dramatic shift, however, has occurred in how Americans are distributed across the geographical landscape - and the effect is not what Southern delegates to the 1787 Convention expected.

Population Growth By Region

|  | $\mathbf{1 7 9 0}$ | $\mathbf{1 8 2 0}$ | Growth |
| :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- |
| Northeast | 1,968 | 4,360 | $122 \%$ |
| Northwest | --- | 793 | ++ |
| Border | 488 | 1,467 | 301 |
| Old South | 1,473 | 2,558 | 74 |
| Southwest | --- | 460 | ++ |
| Total | 3929 | 9,638 | 245 |

At that time, Southerners were convinced that their region's more favorable year-round climate for farming would cause Northerners to migrate their way - thus expanding their "share" of the total U.S. population and, in turn, their share of votes in the House of Representatives.

But this migration fails to materialize - and instead the South's population share actually drops.
The old South - Virginia, North and South Carolina, and Georgia - declines from 38\% of the total population in 1790 to only $24 \%$ by 1820. The Border South - Delaware, Maryland, and Kentucky - is off slightly from $12 \%$ to $11 \%$.

Meanwhile the eight Northeastern states - NH, Vt, Mass, Conn, RI, NY, NJ, Pa -- remain essentially stable, at a dominant $48 \%$ share. This seems to be explained by the growing appeal of Northern cities, with more and more people being drawn to their diverse and vibrant economic opportunities, easy access to goods and services, and the allure of contemporary culture and society.

The big gains in the population shift, however, occur in the "new West" - the four new Northwest Territory states - Ohio, Indiana and Illinois - and the four Southwest states - Tennessee, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Alabama.

Distribution Of US Population

|  | $\mathbf{1 7 9 0}$ | $\mathbf{1 8 2 0}$ | Change |
| :--- | :---: | :---: | :---: |
| Northeast | $50 \%$ | $45 \%$ | $(5)$ |
| Northwest | -- | 8 | 8 |
| Border | 12 | 15 | 3 |
| Old South | 38 | 27 | $(11)$ |
| Southwest | -- | 5 | 5 |
| Total | $100 \%$ | $100 \%$ |  |

The West Begins To Roar

A Typical Log Cabin Residence In The Early 1800’s

A remarkable migration west has already taken place between 1790 and 1820. It begins in Kentucky and then filters in all directions -- expanding the total number of people living across the Appalachians from 386,000 to over 1.6 million, fully one sixth of the total population.

One by one pioneers have driven through mountain gaps, along primitive trails, into possible danger from native tribes, facing the uncertainties of building new log cabins, planting crops, founding towns, and starting their lives over from scratch on the frontier.

Their motivation is as old as the republic itself - the chance to realize the American Dream, to advance one's wealth and station in life by as much as individual daring and initiative permit.

This constant drive for upward mobility is one reward of freedom, and an intrinsic part of the American character.

For those moving west, the dream comes in the form of new farmland, more of it, and better, than what one had "back East."

The land sought extends from the Appalachians, across the Mississippi River and into "Louisiana."

It has been "extracted," first from Britain by warfare, then France by treaty, and finally from the Indian tribes, largely through force and deception.

By 1820 much of the land is "in the public domain," owned by the Federal Government, and divided into "Territories," with boundaries mostly defined by the meanderings of major rivers, and negotiations with the original thirteen states to settle disputed claims.

Terms for its sale of vary over the years -- the latest established by The Land Act of 1820 .

- The minimum size of a tract sold will be 80 acres (reduced from 320 in 1800);
- The price is set at $$ 1.25$ per acre (down from $$ 1.65$, before the Panic of 1819 ); and
- A minimum down payment of $$ 100$ is required of all buyers.

The rest is simple. Frontiersmen are told to go find the site that strikes their fancy; have a surveyor define its span; make payment to the government; write and record the deed; and the land is yours.

As always, speculators flock to acquire the new acreage, then parcel it out into smaller lots for resale and quick profits. Despite these maneuvers, data from North Carolina sales indicate that the average settler probably starts his new life with roughly the 80 acres originally intended.

Size Of Farms In North Carolina (1860)

| Acre Size | $\mathbf{3 - 9}$ | $\mathbf{1 0 - 1 9}$ | $\mathbf{2 0 - 4 9}$ | $\mathbf{5 0 - 9 9}$ | $\mathbf{1 0 0 - 4 9 9}$ | $\mathbf{5 0 0 - 9 9 9}$ | $\mathbf{1 0 0 0 +}$ |
| :--- | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: |
| \% Total | $3 \%$ | $7 \%$ | $31 \%$ | $28 \%$ | $29 \%$ | $2 \%$ | $0.5 \%$ |

Along with the new land comes the opportunity to form new states and be admitted to the Union.
The path to statehood requires that a given Territory achieve a threshold population level of at least 60,000 residents, establish a local legislative body in some city or town, then write, vote on, and pass a state constitution, and apply to the federal government for admission.

Between 1790 and 1820, an additional eight "western" states have already joined the union - with a ninth, Missouri, eager to follow suit.
