Frederick Frost was the recipient of the 2013 Benjamin R. Sturges Distinguished Service Award. Frost was honored for dedicated service to South County Hospital where he previously served as chair of the board of trustees. The Distinguished Service Award is bestowed in honor of Benjamin Sturges, a community leader who devoted his life to health care and to bettering the community. For half a century, Sturges was active in hospital issues as a trustee at South County Hospital and Butler Hospital, and was committed to many educational and environmental causes.

Marie Ganim was the recipient of the Francis R. Dietz Award for Public Service. Currently deputy chief of staff and director of policy in the Office of the Senate President, Ganim is a long-time public servant who is dedicated to improving health care in Rhode Island. The Francis R. Dietz Award for Public Service honors individuals for remarkable contributions to health care issues. HARI dedicates its public service award to the legacy of Francis Dietz, a long-time CEO of Memorial Hospital of Rhode Island.
