HOT WEATHER POLICY HEAT STRESS IN SPORT The risk of heat illness is increased in hot and humid weather, because people may not be able to sweat enough for adequate cooling and high humidity may prevent adequate evaporation of sweat. Whilst the focus of research and these guidelines is aimed at the rider, our goal must also be the welfare of the horse and so their work levels balanced against the heat and humidity must also be considered as well as the cooling techniques and the knowledge of their owner / rider / person responsible.
