NSBEA TODAY

SPRING 2014

Take Charge, Teachers! Take Charge, Students!

A description of combining the courses of career education and personal finance.

Deb Wolken, NSBEA President

TAKE CHARGE! It sounds like a great idea in so many aspects of our personal and professional lives. These are two powerful words that have all kinds of meanings and conjure all kinds of ideas. But for the 2013-14 school year, Take Charge for many Lincoln Public Schools high school business teachers and all juniors in our high schools, Take Charge meant a new graduation requirement course combining the curriculum of career education and personal finance.

After one semester completed (and three terms in the block schedule), the feedback from teachers and students has been very positive. Business teachers know the classes they teach hold life-long relevance for their students. Take Charge in the LPS curriculum is a prime example.

Let me share a couple of quotes, first from a current junior in one of the high schools, "This is the most useful class I have." And this quote comes from a veteran business teacher after a semester of teaching Take Charge, "I have enjoyed teaching this course as much as any other course in my years of teaching business education."

The course is taught in computer labs with heavy emphasis of online resources.

Inclusion of counselors in the classrooms provides specific teaching connections to students' personal career plans. Guest speakers are also an integral part of the course with an interview fair and job shadowing integrated into a very interactive course.

Condensed objectives and abbreviated descriptions include:

- 1) EXPLORE—Career and Finance Exploration (a connection between the career students choose and their future financial situation)
- 2) PREPARE—Career and Life Planning (students make post-secondary decisions and evaluate savings and investment strategies to achieve financial goals; strategies involving credit are also covered in this unit)
- 3) ACT—I'm prepared, now what? (students explore and acquire job seeking skills)

- 4) WORK—Beginning the job, staying employed, and advancing (rights and responsibilities of employees, appreciating diversity in the workplace and identifying personal values and goals into a personal budget)
- 5) PLAN AND SAVE—Save money and move out of the house (components of a paycheck, employee benefit packages including how to protect against the consequences of risk)

Take Charge with LPS juniors does mean a new graduation course requirement but what a positive message for our students! Taking charge of our decisions, our money, and our future—a very powerful message, indeed.

Teaching—Is it Work? Or is it Play?

Dawn Friedrich

Everyone wants to wake up in the morning and go to their dream job, right? That dream job won't seem like work—it will seem like play, right? Well, I am here to say that that statement is absolutely true. That's how I feel about teaching. Especially in my Introduction to Digital Design class. I added this class to my course list this year and have thoroughly enjoyed the entire semester. It really didn't seem like work and that is how the students felt too. It is a very project-based class. Besides just having fun, I also found that the best part of this class was seeing the creativity of the students. Kids are truly amazing. Their ideas continually surprise me. I finished my first year with this class and had 13 students enrolled. This is a great number for a Class D2 school. Out of the 13 students, 8 were guys. Their designs were often chosen as the winning designs in local competitions.

Adding this class to my existing Information Technology I and II courses has enabled me to now meet a program of study in the cluster level of Information Technology.

I used this class to promote my business education program by having the students design a logo and tagline for me. The entire student body was then involved in a vote for their favorite design. This design is now displayed on my classroom window. My students also created the design for the new journalism class, a class that produces short news video clips. The winning logo design was voted on by the journalism class and used on their productions. All students created a design for the NSAA

Sportsmanship Banner Contest. The class then voted on their favorite design and it was submitted for a chance to win $1,000 for our school. There are also several FBLA Competitive Events that can be incorporated into this class as well. These examples include:

- FBLA Desktop Publishing Event
- FBLA Digital Design and Promotion Event
- FBLA Digital Video Production Event
- FBLA Public Service Announcement Event

So, if you are thinking about adding a different class to your program, or are thinking of how to meet a program of study in the Information Technology field, consider adding Introduction to Digital Design. A program of study in this cluster would include Information Technology I and II with the capstone course being Introduction to Digital Design. The course standards are already done for you and can be found at the BMIT website. Click on the Information Technology cluster tab.

Shelly Mowinkel, President-Elect

Is it really spring already? Actually it is technically spring, but it sure doesn't feel like spring outside. However, track is in full swing and the year-end banquets are starting to happen and we all know that this means the end of the year is approaching fast and furious. For this "Snippet From Shelly," I thought I would share three technology tools you might get addicted to fast and furiously!

 The Chrome Ginger Extension: This free (or paid for premium version) corrects your spelling and grammar errors on many popular websites such as Twitter, Facebook, Gmail, just to name a few. Link to the extension: <http://tinyurl.com/chromeginger>.

 The Sexy Undo Close Tab Extension (Yep...that's the name!): Accidentally, just closed a tab? What about retrieving a tab that was used over four hours ago? This Chrome extension keeps a running list of the tabs you have opened and with one click you can reopen the tab. Clear button at the bottom of the list allows user to clear the list. TED Ed a website where you can build any lesson around a TED Ed, TED Talk, or YouTube video. This literally is as easy as 1, 2, and 3, to use in your classroom or for professional development. Create your own lessons or adapt created lessons to meet your classroom needs. Note: you must register to create a lesson and your students must register to answer the discussion questions. Website: <http://ed.ted.com/>

Step 1: Create A Lesson

Build a lesson around any TED-Ed Original, TED Talk or YouTube video

Add a discussion question after the dig deeper section for students to reflect upon the lesson.

The last section of the lesson, allows you to add 1,000 characters to wrap up the lesson.

1000 Characters Available

Final Step in Creating Your Lesson – is to preview or publish your lesson.

After you have published your TED Ed lesson, you have multiple options to share your lesson. You can also edit your lesson after it has been created.

I have found TED Ed as a great tool to use in flipping a Personal Finance Unit. I like how students come to class with questions and we can spend time in class completing activities that review the information learned in the lesson.

The screenshot shows the TED Ed lesson interface. On the left, there is a video player with a cartoon character and the title "How Credit Score Is Calculated & How To Improve Your Credit History". Below the video, it says "Lesson Stats 0 Students" and has an "Edit" button. On the right, there are two panels. The top panel is titled "Lesson is" and has a toggle switch for "UNLISTED" and a "NO" button. The bottom panel is titled "Share" and has a URL "http://ed.ted.com/on/jIPaptUR" and social media icons for Facebook, Twitter, Pinterest, and Google+. To the right of the "Share" panel is a "Share via email" section with a "Send" button and a note: "We suggest you talk about why this video was picked, its relevance to you and your learners...".

My goal with these three tools is for you to have technologies that are fast to use and you could use them furiously! Very simple, user-friendly tools that will definitely benefit you and your students! Have a great spring semester!

Keynote Speakers:

Tabitha Turner: The featured speaker of this year's conference is Tabitha Turner. Ms. Turner started her way towards her career at the young age of 17, where she had worked her way up the ranks at Bank of America from a teller to Assistant Branch Manager before graduating high school. Changes in life led her to a recruiting firm, where she started on the ground floor as an administrative assistant. Within two short months, management recognized her abilities, and helped her find her first job as a recruiter. The opportunity to join Mir, Mitchell & Company, L.L.P. (now MMC Group, where she currently works), presented itself after only 2 years in the industry and very hard work.

Tabitha has worked her way from a Full Desk Technical Recruiter, to Recruiting Manager, to Client Executive and now the Director of Managed Accounts as well as a shareholder with the organization, and nearly 14 years of dedicated service. Tabitha studied Business Management and Finance at the University of Texas in Arlington. Tabitha's success as a young professional has allowed her the opportunity to share with young upcoming students and professionals of today what it takes to be successful – it's a true passion!

Janet Corder and Joan Gore – J2 Training: Take a journey with Janet and Joan and explore new and exciting technology ideas for your classroom. Integrating technology into the curriculum is their passion, bringing years of experience from campus, district, national, and international levels to their workshops and presentations. Be prepared to ride away with new ideas for all grade levels and curriculum areas.

One More Thing Cathy Nutt, President

What????.... What do you mean you want me to do one more thing? And you want me to do something for myself? What are you talking about!? I have papers to grade, classes to plan, students to help, and that doesn't even take into account my family obligations. There is just no way!

Have you ever felt like that? And maybe you're feeling it right now. It's almost the end of the school year, students are always needing/wanting to catch up and hey it's almost summer—and maybe it's been a long year... (Well at least that's how I am feeling right now) How can we even think about some time to ourselves?

We need to re-energize, re-new, revive, learn new techniques, collaborate, commiserate—feed that starving baker as Dr. Tim Elmore might say.

Amazing opportunities are available to us in our state, through NSBEA, and through ARBE-DPE. The upcoming NCE Conference and other leadership opportunities will be happening this summer and if you're up for a road trip look into the M-PBEA conference being held in Dallas/Fort Worth, Texas. Most importantly, take some time for you—read a book, attend an amazing conference or two, and take some time to revive the educator in you!

If you are interested in joining ARBE-DPE, Nebraska's Alpha Upsilon Chapter will have their next initiation in June during the Nebraska Career Education Conference in Kearney during the BMIT Banquet on Wednesday evening. If you are interested in joining, please contact Cathy Nutt, DPE President at nuttc@mpcc.edu for more information.
