51	McEvers Bayard Brown Oak	South of Airport Terminal, Jekyll Island	51'	585	The eccentric millionaire McEvers Bayard Brown, a Jekyll Island Club millionaire, commissioned a cottage that was constructed on Jekyll Island near the site of this tree. The elegant cottage was built for his bride to be, but the wedding was cancelled. Heartbroken, Brown left for England, never to return to the Golden Isles. He spent the rest of his life on a yacht in an English harbor. The lovely Queen Anne style home he had built was occupied only by caretakers and Club staff. The house fell into disrepair and was demolished after the State of Georgia obtained title to the Island in the 1940s.
