Praise for Luna Swift
(Taken from reader reviews)

Wonderful, erotic, arousing and so naughty.

Oh my god. This is the hottest thing I have read in a long time.

I haven't paid for an erotic story before, but after reading the sample I knew that I had to pay the low asking price and give it a shot. I highly recommend it.

Very, very hot. And well-written too. I thoroughly enjoyed this.

Very professional and even sensual. Wonderful job of writing.

Enjoyed your story. Keep 'em coming!

Not a fan of watersports but that was a brilliantly told tale, lovely characters and very funny story!

Kudos to Luna Swift for wonderful command & usage of English. This is a VERY well written story!

Gets to the subject quickly and descriptively giving satisfaction time after time.

Nice story, always admired your works keep it up.

This is a really good story...an excellent author.

You've created a new fantasy for me. Your writing is excellent.

Such a hot and erotic story. This is something that I have secretly wanted to try. Thank you.

Chapter 1 – Erin and Annie Move in Next Door

I ducked down behind the fence but it was too late. They'd already seen me. I didn't know what to do, I was frozen to the spot, my hand deep inside my bikini bottom as I heard their footsteps coming towards me before then the sun was blocked out, casting a shadow over me as I crouched down, wishing the ground would swallow me up.

I looked up to see both of them peering over the fence at me. I expected them to yell at me for spying on them but instead they both smiled warmly.

"Well," Erin began, "are you going to stay there forever or do you want to come and join us?"

When Erin and Annie first moved in next door my mother was disgusted. She'd been angrier and angrier since my father had left us six months before, not that she was the happiest of people before then. I was in the kitchen finishing my breakfast when the removals van pulled up onto next doors drive.

"Looks like we'll have some neighbours at last," she said, her nose almost pressed against the window as she watched two men jump down and open the back of the van. A car came to a halt behind it, I could see from where I was sitting that it was a convertible with the top down. Inside were two women.

"I wonder if they have kids," my mother said. "Maybe they'll be able to give you a lift into uni, save me having to be late for work everyday."

I rolled my eyes and stood up. Trust her to forget it was only the three months of her badgering me that persuaded me to enrol at university in the first place. I couldn't win. When I left school and hung around at home I was a waste of space. Now I was at uni I was a burden and treated her like a taxi driver.

"Oh my god, that is sick," she said, still staring at next door.

I turned away from the sink to look out the window. The two women had climbed out of the car and were standing in the driveway, their arms wrapped round each other, openly kissing.

I giggled out loud. "It's the modern world mum."

She spun round and glared at me. "That may be but it doesn't make it right. Doing things like that in public. It's not legal, surely."

“I know,” I replied, leaning over her shoulder. “How dare they be in love without your permission.”

I ran for the stairs to avoid the swing of my mother’s arm aiming a slap at me. Winding her up was fun to a certain point but since the separation her sense of humour seemed to have vanished for good. Maybe it left with my father in one of his suitcases.

“Are you coming?” my mother shouted up to me as I lay on my bed flicking through a magazine.

“They’ve just emailed. Mrs Edwards is off sick so no lecture today. Self study.”

I turned to the fashion pages, raising my eyebrows at the prices. Who spent a grand on a handbag? If I had that much money I’d get a car and drive far far away, not get a faux crocodile skin monstrosity like that.

“Well I hope you get some revision done while I’m at work.” The door opened and closed and then I was alone.

“Oh yes,” I muttered to the empty house. “I’ll revise plenty.”

I don’t know if it’s the same for you but as soon as I’m alone in my house, the first thing I want to do is masturbate. Maybe it’s because I’m not alone that often or maybe it’s my teenage hormones. I sometimes wonder if I’ll grow out of it or will I always be like this? If so living on my own when I’m rich enough will be a sore experience.

I looked out of my bedroom window and watched my mum driving away. I was about to close the curtains when I saw my new neighbours again. They were holding hands and walking towards the passageway between our two houses. Call me curious or call me nosy but I was intrigued by the two of them. I’d never seen lesbians before, not in real life anyway.

I’ve seen a few videos on the internet but the women in those were so plastic it was like watching two dolls having sex, it didn’t do much for me. As I ran through to my mother’s bedroom, I felt strangely excited at this secret spying on the two of them.

I looked round the edge of my mum’s window and watched the two women standing together in the back yard, near their pool, the pool I was so jealous of, the one I’d wanted to dive in to whenever it was a hot day like today but my mother had forbidden it. She kept saying I’d drown in it and I’d be trespassing too. She managed to make the trespassing sound worse than drowning and no amount of reminding her that next door had been empty for over a year made any difference.

They were quite different looking women. One was red headed, an elfish face that never stopped smiling and quite flat chested in a plain white t-shirt. She was wearing denim shorts that she must have been sewn into, they were so tight. I could clearly see the shapely curve of her bottom in them and then her long slender legs, so brown, so tanned. Her companion was shorter, with dark hair, almost black or so it seemed. She had a bigger chest, her cleavage was clearly visible as she was in a low cut dress that also skimmed her thighs. The breeze was making it flutter, giving me teasing glimpses of her upper thighs as she pulled her friend towards her and planted a kiss on her.

I felt a tingling inside me as I watched the two of them kissing, unable to look away as the redhead's hands slid up the back of her friend's dress, disappearing from sight as she caressed the buttocks that were hidden from my voyeuristic view.

As I stood there, I felt my pussy begin to ache in the familiar way I knew so well. My hand slid down to the front of my jeans, beginning to gently rub through the thick fabric. It was teasing and frustrating me too much so I pulled at the button holding them together and then slid my hand inside. As my fingers ran over my panties I was surprised by how wet they felt, my pussy had soaked them completely. I stroked the tip of my clit through my knickers as the two women continued to embrace.

I kept staring at them as I moved my hand up to the lacy fabric at the top of my panties. I was just sliding down the smooth skin inside when the front door banged shut, sending me into a panic.

I ran for the landing, frantically buttoning my jeans back together as my mother shouted up to me. "Forgot my phone."
