La Fête de la Musique (also known as the World Music Day) was originally conceived in 1976 by American musician Joel Cohen who proposed a musical celebration of the summer solstice. However, the idea was successfully implemented by French Music and Dance director Maurice Fleuret for Minister of Culture Jack Lang, and the annual celebration began in 1982 in Paris. It soon spread throughout France and is today celebrated in 110 countries.

Throughout France, the U.S., and the rest of the world, June 21 will see numerous street performances and concerts which are provided for the entire world to enjoy and celebrate music of all types and in all languages.

We look forward to welcoming you at our celebration on June 21!

Best regards,

Marc Zeman
