Season of Lent: Lent is the yearly celebration by the Church of its corporate conversion in Jesus Christ. During Lent, the liturgy prepares catechumens to celebrate the Paschal Mystery by the various stages of Christian Initiation. It also prepares the faithful for Easter as they recall their Baptism and do penance in preparation for the greatest Feast of the year. Lent has two major purposes: It recalls or prepares for Baptism, and emphasizes a spirit of penance. Through forty days of closer attention to God's Word and of more fervent prayer, believers are prepared to celebrate the Paschal Mystery.

OUR LADY OF MERCY ~ THE IMPORTANCE OF A CHURCH MISSION ~ FR. ANGUS JOHNSTON

At the last meeting of our Pastoral Council of Our Lady of Mercy, on Monday January 30, 2023, our council voted unanimously on adopting the Greater Shediac Community Garden Inc. as our church mission for the next twelve months. Last year, due to unfortunate circumstances, the Community Garden lost access to the land that had been used for 12 years. The garden is a staple of our community and used to provide food for the needy and a growing space for all those who need a garden space. The dismantling of the garden represents a great loss for our community.

During the process, most of the wood used for the raised beds was lost due to damages. The garden has recently secured a new location and a lease with the French school district at the back of LJR high school. The cost of rebuilding "From the ground up" will cost an estimated 120,000.00 in materials and tools. It would be wonderful for our church community to aim at raising 10% of this cost, in support of the needy in our community!

In the next few weeks, a fundraising chart will be installed at the entrance of our church. An amount of 2500.00 has already been donated by an individual, bringing our goal down to $9,500.00!

St Lawrence O'Toole is starting a parish mission to help the needy in their area, St Augustine already supports Ray of Hope Kitchen, St Vincent de Paul Society, and helps with the school lunch program at Beaverbrook.

Together, we can all make a huge difference in our community! For the next year, special envelopes will be available for donations & fundraising events will also be organized for this cause. Your generosity is always appreciated! The garden will also welcome anyone willing to volunteer as well as the donation of gardening tools, made available for gardeners. The garden welcomes all to become members!

With Gratitude, Fr. Angus

INTEGRAL ECOLOGY

137. Since everything is closely interrelated, and today's problems call for a vision capable of taking into account every aspect of the global crisis, I suggest that we now consider some elements of an integral ecology, one which clearly respects its human and social dimensions.

I. ENVIRONMENTAL, ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL ECOLOGY

138. Ecology studies the relationship between living organisms and the environment in which they develop. This necessarily entails reflection and debate about the conditions required for the life and survival of society, and the honesty needed to question certain models of development, production and consumption. It cannot be emphasized enough how everything is interconnected. Time and space are not independent of one another, and not even atoms or subatomic particles can be considered in isolation. Just as the different aspects of the planet – physical, chemical and biological – are interrelated, so too living species are part of a network which we will never fully explore and understand. A good part of our genetic code is shared by many living beings. It follows that the fragmentation of knowledge and the isolation of bits of information can actually become a form of ignorance, unless they are integrated into a broader vision of reality.

139. When we speak of the “environment”, what we really mean is a relationship existing between nature and the society which lives in it. Nature cannot be regarded as something separate from ourselves or as a mere setting in which we live. We are part of nature, included in it and thus in constant interaction with it. Recognizing the reasons why a given area is polluted requires a study of the workings of society, its economy, its behaviour patterns, and the ways it grasps reality. Given the scale of change, it is no longer possible to find a specific, discrete answer for each part of the problem. It is essential to seek comprehensive solutions which consider the interactions within natural systems themselves and with social systems. We are faced not with two separate crises, one environmental and the other social, but rather with one complex crisis which is both social and environmental. Strategies for a solution demand an integrated approach to combating poverty, restoring dignity to the excluded, and at the same time protecting nature.

141. Economic growth, for its part, tends to produce predictable reactions and a certain standardization with the aim of simplifying procedures and reducing costs. This suggests the need for an “economic ecology” capable of appealing to a broader vision of reality. The protection of the environment is in fact “an integral part of the development process and cannot be considered in isolation from it”.^[114] We urgently need a humanism capable of bringing together the different fields of knowledge, including economics, in the service of a more integral and integrating vision. Today, the analysis of environmental problems cannot be separated from the analysis of human, family, work-related and urban contexts, nor from how individuals relate to themselves, which leads in turn to how they relate to others and to the environment. There is an interrelation between ecosystems and between the various spheres of social interaction, demonstrating yet again that “the whole is greater than the part”.^[115]

143. Together with the patrimony of nature, there is also an historic, artistic and cultural patrimony which is likewise under threat. This patrimony is a part of the shared identity of each place and a foundation upon which to build a habitable city. It is not a matter of tearing down and building new cities, supposedly more respectful of the environment yet not always more attractive to live in. Rather, there is a need to incorporate the history, culture and architecture of each place, thus preserving its original identity. Ecology, then, also involves protecting the cultural treasures of humanity in the broadest sense. More specifically, it calls for greater attention to local cultures when studying environmental problems, favouring a dialogue between scientific-technical language and the language of the people. Culture is more than what we have inherited from the past; it is also, and above all, a living, dynamic and participatory present reality, which cannot be excluded as we rethink the relationship between human beings and the environment.
