A Note from Rick: Markets were stronger this week at TLA. The hay market was smaller and stronger again this week as the season winds down and new hay is getting closer & closer. I look for this trend to continue. The dairy cattle market had a very light test, but prices were steady. The calf market continued its steady trend, which I think will continue. The slaughter market was a little stronger across the board and showed slightly more demand from buyers, which is a welcome sign for sure. I look for demand to continue to improve as more plants get opened back up. It's great to see and hear about more and more things starting to stabilize and a better sense of direction is able to be seen for businesses trying to get going again. We are looking forward to being able to open up the horse arena and getting these horses sold that our customers have been holding on to since March! See you at TLA!
