As the spiritual heart of Egypt for over two millennia, Karnak stands as a testament to the enduring power and complexity of ancient Egyptian civilization. During this study day, we will explore the complex's architectural, religious, and socio-political development, examining how it transformed from its modest origins into a sprawling metropolis of temples, chapels, and sacred spaces. Through a comprehensive analysis of the site's physical remains and textual evidence, this study day aims to illuminate the grandeur and significance of this extraordinary place.

Dr Ken Griffin is the Curator of the Egypt Centre, Swansea University.

Prior to this, he was the Collections Access Manager at the museum.

His association with the Egypt Centre first began in 2000 as a volunteer.

Over the past two decades, he has been researching the collection, including publishing a number of the objects.

Ken is a former lecturer in Egyptology and the coordinating tutor of Egyptology with the Department of Adult Continuing Education (DACE) at Swansea University.

He has visited Egypt on over 60 occasions and, since 2010, has been a member of the South Asasif Conservation Project (SACP), directed by Dr. Elena Pischikova.
