From the President—Marjie Siekerka

Hello Ladies.

We hope you enjoyed our speakers last month, John Coleman on "Global Warming" at the luncheon and City Councilmen Scott Sherman and Chris Cate at the evening meeting. This month should prove to be quite interesting too! Before and after our meeting on the 10th you will have a chance to fill out Hearts 4 Heroes, a Valentine Outreach for our Military. Navajo Canyon will supply the valentines for you to let our heroes know how much we appreciate them. The notes will be delivered to the VA Medical Center in La Jolla, Balboa Navy Medical Center, and a Veteran's Home in Chula Vista. Our meeting will have three speakers at the Brigantine; Shirley Kaltenborn will educate us on the history of the Federated Women in San Diego, County Supervisor Dianne Jacob who is currently serving her sixth term, and Tony Krvaric the Chairman of San Diego County Republicans. Supervisor Jacob and Chairman Krvaric will both be addressing the new rule limiting contributions for the supervisor races. You may have noticed in the news this is a very hot topic!

Navajo Canyon RFW has a busy year planned. Please feel free to pick and choose the activities you wish to participate in. There will be a Meet and Greet on March 28th location TBD and the Senior Follies in August. Next month our speaker at the Brigantine will be one of our favorites Jason Roe from Revolvis Consulting. Mr. Roe will give us an insight to current issues and the pending 2016 elections. Downtown speakers from the District Attorney's office will educate us on the downfalls of Prop. 47 and Yes means Yes! Our fashion show will be earlier this year - June 9th - please save the date. Fashions will be by Chico's (more fashions than last year) and the venue will be the Bali Hai's beautiful outside pavilion. Please do not be nervous when it says "outside" there are no stairs required, there are awnings and fans with an amazing view of the bay.

I love that for Barack, there is no such thing as 'us' and 'them' - he doesn't care whether you're a Democrat, a Republican, or none of the above... he knows that we all love our country... and he's always ready to listen to good ideas... he's always looking for the very best in everyone he meets. #### 2015 is the beginning of our success in 2016!!

This is our year to register Republicans! It's an easy job, we just need to show up. We have a lot of fun and you get to meet wonderful sisters from other RWF. Plan to join us in the coming months to ensure a Republican success in 2016. I am also putting information and the dates for South Bay Voter Registration.

We need to help our sisters in the Chula Vista/Bonita RWF. Their New Citizens ceremony is always scheduled the same day as their monthly meetings. Ask me about details and think of carpooling with someone one Wednesday morning a month.

Chaplain's Words of Inspiration — Ginny Wisley

Ah, February! The month that Cupid shoots his darts into the hearts of lovers; the month Saint Valentine became the "sweetheart" for See's Candies & Hallmark cards.

How often we say "I LOVE that TV show; I LOVE that actor; I LOVE that song; I LOVE that food dish," etc. All those truly important things, but are they? Do we really love them or just really like them a lot?

We live in a great city that we love & we also live in a great country that we love. We live in a country to which we Pledge Allegiance to – one nation under God, with liberty & justice for all. Let's reflect on that for a moment. We need to really love this country, from the income challenged to the higher income; from the workers to the retired; from the currently serving to the veterans; from the able bodied to the disabled bodied. They too, have the right to be part of the nation under God.

We must love this country & seek the wisdom of the God that we worship to make sure that in this month of love that we seek peace, kindness, discernment toward other nations & that those currently in governmental power will strive to be the nation on the hill whose light shines in the darkness of evil & truly becomes the nation of freedom, love, kindness & the nation under God. We must work to become the America of the not so distant past that was respected & protected.

To quote Proverbs 28.2 NIV: When a country is rebellious, it has many rulers, but a ruler with discernment & knowledge maintains order. Let us use this month of love to pray for the "unrebellion" of America & rulers with discernment & knowledge & press on to continue that thought through the elections in 2016.

Happy Valentine's Day Ladies

(p.s.: as I mentioned at the meeting, feel free to contact me with any "Chaplain-y" type needs: prayers, a listening ear, etc., that is part of this job)

"POPCORN" POLITICS"

California Mileage Tax

California pays the second highest gas tax in the nation. Now legislators are debating getting rid of the state tax on gasoline and replacing it with a mileage tax; charging motorists a fee for every mile they drive. Because of electric, hybrid and fuel-efficient cars, drivers are using less gas, creating a loss in revenue for the state.

Drivers should pay for the upkeep of the highways, but where does that monev really go?

If the mileage tax goes into effect, costs for drivers will skyrocket, and think of all trucks delivering all of those goods. As their costs go up, so will everything you buy. Let your legislators know this is a really bad idea.

Congressman McClintock Pushes Water Storage, Public Roads Access

Recently Guy Brown announced the first allocations of the $7.5 billion water bond, he allocated over $500 million. Most went to wetlands, conservation and ground water cleanup. No a dime went to dams, which is why Californians voted for this boondoggle to pay off the special interests and unions. Congressman McClintock has a better understanding of California needs. While Guv Brown is NOT building new roads, not building new dams, not building new infrastructure, this is just a continuation of his policies from previous terms.

McClintock noted, "In the interview, he summarized, "Generally, droughts are nature's fault, but water shortages are our fault. We haven't built a major wa-ter storage facility in California since 1979. So we're not going to solve our water shortage until we build more dams. And we're not going to build more dams until we overhaul the radical environmental laws that have made their construction impossible.

County Contribution Limits Won't Achieve Goal

The San Diego County Board of Supervisors' vote this week to cap contributions from political parties to candidates in county elections was earnest and well-meaning. But there is plenty of evidence that it is also naive and doomed to fail at its goals of limiting election spending and creating the appearance of propriety.

With only Bill Horn dissenting, the board limited donations from the parties to $25,000 for supervisorial races and to $50,000 in elections involving countywide offices. Unlike some local limits on campaign contributions enacted around the U.S., at least the county's rules appear constitutional.

But the rules are built on an assumption at odds with modern American history: that people who want to use their money to pay for political speech to advocate their interests won't be able to find a way to do so. Instead, there are more ways than ever for deep-pockets individuals and organizations to contribute to their causes, thanks to U.S. Supreme Court rulings holding that political speech is generally constitutionally protected free speech.

When it comes to campaign contributions, the best approach is the simplest: complete transparency. As soon as campaign-related donations are made to any candidate, they should be disclosed online. Using donations to attempt to influence policy is as old as democracy. If everyone knows who's making this attempt — and to what extent — then we can judge if their contributions have led to corruption, impropriety or just plain old bad policies.

Don't ask a question unless you can stand the answer. Oliver North was asked why he thought Obama, Biden, Kerry or Holder didn't attend the unity rally in Paris. He said, because it was for world leaders.

BEST QUOTE OF THE DAY:

FIVE FOLD DIAMOND AWARD WINNER

National Security Shameless Semantics

The Obama administration has reached what is best described as a metastatic level of denial, aided and abetted by semantical manipulation. Last week, one of the five high-level Taliban thugs released from Guantanamo Bay prison in exchange for alleged deserter Bowie Bergdahl was caught making telephone calls to the Taliban. The same week, the same Taliban claimed responsibility for murdering of three American civilian contractors and wounding a fourth at a military base connected to Kabul's international airport. It is the same Taliban who turned Afghanistan into an al-Qaida training ground, allowing them the opportunity to plan and execute the worst domestic attack in America's history. Despite all of this, the Obama administration is determined to label them an "armed insurgency," not a terrorist group.

That put White House Press Secretary Josh Earnest in a bind, because while the State Department hasn't deemed the Taliban a foreign terrorist organization, the Treasury Department has them listed as "specially designated global terrorists" per a 2002 executive order. Hence, Earnest attempted to find a middle ground that doesn't exist. "They do carry out tactics that are akin to terrorism, they do pursue terror attacks in an effort to try to advance their agenda," he conceded, but they're not a terrorist organization because their murderous sprees "have principally been focused on Afghanistan."

This is not the first time such fecklessness has occurred. Until Secretary of State John Kerry placed them on the State Department's terror list, former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton adamantly refused to designate Nigeria's Boko Haram a terrorist organization, even as she hypocritically tweeted, "We must stand up to terrorism" following the kidnapping of 200 Nigerian girls last April – by a group whose level of slaughter is now comparable to that of ISIL.

Why the latest unconscionable hair-splitting? Because our equally feckless commander in chief wishes to maintain the fiction that America does not negotiate with terrorists. Toward that end, one administration hack after another has toed the administration line. Last Sunday, White House Chief of Staff Denis McDonough, referencing the proposed prisoner swap between Jordan, Japan and ISIL, led the charge. "We don't get into negotiation with terrorists," he told Fox News. "We don't pay ransom because that cash then fuels further kidnappings, which just continue to exacerbate the problem. So we're not going to do that."

Referencing the same swap, State Department spokeswoman Jen Psaki noted that every country "has the ability and the right to make decisions," but reiterated the U.S. position that "we don't make concessions to terrorists." During a White House briefing last Wednesday, deputy press secretary Eric Schultz insisted the Taliban was an "armed insurgency" and that our prisoner swaps with them "are traditional end-of-conflict interaction that happens."

One might be forgiven for noticing that "end-of-conflict" is an equally egregious denial of reality, one that will inevitably resemble the bloody results of Obama unilaterally "ending" the conflict in Iraq. Adding insult to injury, Obama's "no troops on the ground" commitment vis-à-vis Iraq is another fiction belied by the 1,400 servicemen currently in country, as well as the additional 1,500 approved to be sent there by the president in November.

The administration's latest assault on the English language can be explained in two words: Bowe Bergdahl. Both Fox and NBC News reported the decision had already been made to try Bergdahl for desertion, though three different military spokesmen denied those reports. Retired Lt. Col Bill Cowan explained the machinations behind the case: "In White House terms, not charging Bergdahl means that he was indeed worth the trade for the Taliban Five. But charging him on any level means that releasing the five Taliban was an error of monstrous proportions, one the administration will never be able to explain away satisfactorily.

Admirable assessment, but naive. Imagine the worst case scenario for Obama - that Bergdahl is charged as the deserter his comrades in arms allege him to be. Now imagine the president saving while that is unfortunate, we still don't leave our soldiers behind under any circumstances. Thus, swapping five high-level insurgents for him - as opposed to five hard-core terrorists - was the only reasonable thing to do.

Note the groundwork for this has already been laid, courtesy of the aforementioned jargon about "traditional end-of-conflict" exchanges with insurgencies.

Note further the same media that rushed to defend the president when Bergdahl was released would do so again in a heartbeat. Both The New York Times and The Huffington Post impugned the soldiers in Bergdahl's unit who claimed he deserted his post because their media appearances were "arranged" by Republican "strategists." The Times went on to describe Bergdahl as a "free-spirited young man who asked many questions but gave no indication of being a deserter." Even more incredibly, when the Times revealed that Bergdahl had "wandered away" two previous occasions, they sought to attribute his third disappearance to "an environment of lax security and discipline."

Radical Islam is waging war against West. Obama, his minions and their media collaborators are waging war on vocabulary. On Saturday, ISIL released its latest video of Japanese journalist Kenji Goto being beheaded, reminding the world that such denial, and the semantical manipulation employed to serve it, are utterly bankrupt conceits.
