Please Note the Following:

Oceania is a name used for varying groups of islands of the Pacific Ocean. In its narrow usage it refers to Polynesia (including New Zealand), Melanesia (including New Guinea) and Micronesia. In a wider usage it includes Australia. It may also include the Malay archipelago. Although the islands of Oceania do not form part of a true continent, Oceania is sometimes associated with the continent of Australia for the purposes of dividing the whole world into continental groupings. As such, it is the smallest "continent" in area and the second smallest, after Antarctica, in population.

Australasia is the area that includes Australia, New Zealand, New Guinea, and the many smaller islands in the vicinity, most of which are the eastern part of Indonesia. The name was coined by Charles de Brosses in Histoire des navigations aux terres australes (1756). He derived it from the Latin for "south of Asia" and differentiated the area from Polynesia and the south east Pacific (Magellanica). Australasia is sometimes used as a term for Australia and New Zealand alone, in the absence of another word limited to those two countries.

Spelling: Traveler or Traveller? – both are correct. Traveler is commonly used in the USA. Traveller is commonly used in Canada and the UK. We're Canadian based and decided to use Traveller.

Instructions for the Geography Passport

Print off a set of passports for each child.

Cut the pages in half on the grey cutting line and stack them with the “My Passport Around the World” page on top.

Fix the pages of the passport together (staple, hole punch), and have the children prepare the cover page by coloring and writing in the name of the “Traveller”.

Prepare for your travels!

We have a large selection of printable cards and maps that will assist you with your travels around the world. We suggest you select 1 continent at a time and prepare a “Continent Box” (think shoe-box size) that will hold all of your cards, figures, money, & knick-knacks that are relevant to that continent. We recommend having an atlas available as well.
