One of our guest speakers is Dr. Juliana Rangel. She was born in Colombia, South America, Juliana obtained a BS degree in 2004 from the program of Ecology, Behavior, and Evolution at the University of California, San Diego. In 2010 she then obtained a Ph. D. from the Department of Neurobiology and Behavior at Cornell University in Ithaca, NY, working under the supervision of Dr. Thomas D. Seeley. Her dissertation explored the mechanisms and functional organization of reproductive swarming in the honey bee Apis mellifera. From 2010-2013 she worked as an NSF Postdoctoral Research Fellow with Dr. David R. Tarpay at North Carolina State University. In January 2013, Juliana became Assistant Professor of Apiculture in the Department of Entomology at Texas A&M University in College Station, TX. Her research program focuses on the biological and environmental factors that influence the reproductive quality of honey bee queens and drones, the health and population genetics of feral honey bees, and the quality and diversity of floral sources collected by honey bees in developed areas across the country. She is also an active member of the Texas Beekeepers Association and has spoken to numerous beekeeping associations in Texas and across the USA. She teaches two undergraduate courses, Honey Bee Biology and Introduction to Beekeeping, and also Professional Grant Writing for graduate students. She is the co-advisor of the Undergraduate Entomology Student Organization and the coach of Texas A&M University's undergraduate and graduate teams of the Linnaean Games, a quiz bowl-style competition that tests students on their knowledge of entomology at the regional and national games of the Entomological Society of America (ESA). She is the elected chair of the ESA's Diversity and Inclusion Committee and also serves in the Department of Entomology's Graduate Student Forum Committee, and the Graduate Admissions Committee.

Jerry Hayes is the VP for Vita North America, supplier, and manufacturer of natural and near-natural honey bee health products. Jerry was the honeybee RNAi/Varroa control commercial lead for Monsanto previously. He was Apiary Chief for the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, responsible for the regulatory health of 350,000 colonies. For 30+ years, Hayes has written a monthly column in American Bee Journal called The Classroom; he wrote a book by the same name. He is a founding member of the Colony Collapse Working Group and a science advisory board member for Project Apis mellifera (PAm) and the Bee Informed Partnership. He has authored multiple research papers on understanding and preserving honeybee health. His topics are all "Confirmation Bias..." I had to look it up to see what confirmation bias means.

More guest speakers—like our new Kansas Pollinator People from K-State-come hear them on Saturday!
I'll also add a break out for the Kansas Senior Farmers Market Nutrition Program (KSFMNP)
