A Note from Rick: Markets varied slightly in both directions on Tuesday. Bull calves were stronger this week which was good to see after several weeks of decline. We've also had a steady rise in heifer calves at recent sales, with prices similar to bull calves. Butcher cows and steers were both weaker compared to last week but still a little stronger than weeks previous. The Dairy markets remain unchanged which comes as no surprise with nothing really going on out there to give it a spark. Seems to be continued liquidation from a number of producers which puts continued pressure on cattle markets but hasn't seemed to effect the milk supply. The Hay market has seemed to level off a bit with prices considerably higher than they were for 3/4 of the year. The Christmas Sale Catalogs are printed and available now. Have a great week...

There will be no regular Tuesday Hay & Livestock Sale on the day after Christmas (December 26th)
