THERMOLUMINESCENT DOSIMETER (TLD) X-RAY BADGE SERVICE

The Hidden Dangers

The most serious potential risk to you and your employees' health is radiation from x-ray equipment. Since radiation can't be detected by senses, it's understandable that staff members who use x-ray equipment are concerned about any possible exposure.

Even though you follow proper safety procedures, maintain the x-ray equipment in good condition, the x-ray laboratory's environment is considered to be hazardous due to scattered x-rays, or accidental malfunctions or misuse of x-ray equipment. Proper monitoring of all the personals will eliminate the danger of excessive exposures to the healthcare providers.

Technology

The TLD badge is the state of the art technology in radiation monitoring.

Unlike the out of date "Film type" x-ray badges that require replacement every month and are processed manually, the TLD badge offers the convenience of three months usage. Each badge has four elements for radiation detection.

Two elements are Li₂B₄O₇: Cu which has a Radiation response characteristic very close to human tissue and the other two elements are CaSO₄: Tm, which are extremely sensitive for radiation detection. The TLD badge is small and lightweight. It can be clipped easily to clothing. Each badge has a control number and it is punch coded for easy identification and tracking.

You have the advantage of receiving accurate reports from the fully automated reading and reporting process performed by Panasonic TLD Automatic Reader. The Panasonic TLD Reader is equipped with a microcomputer that controls self checking functions to provide the most accurate results.

Affordable Protection

For only $87.20 per person (or less), per year, your clinic will receive new badges every three months along with a reply envelope, to send the old badges back for processing and reporting.

Printed reports will be sent to your clinic for your records. If any reading should ever exceed NRC safety standards, you will be contacted by phone immediately.

No Hidden Fees

- No set up charges
- No charge to change service due to staff changes

- No charges for replacement copy of reports
- No charge for control badge
