

Encounter I

Let's Get Acquainted

“We interrupt your regularly scheduled life to bring you this late breaking news update!”

HUMANS CRAVE SEXUAL SATISFACTION BEYOND THE “NORM!”

Yes, I said it out loud! Yes, I put this dirty little, well-hidden secret on display for everyone in the world to hear. Now, we all can breathe a lot easier. We can stop thinking we are too lady-like or too much of a macho man to express our innermost sexual desires, fantasies, and pleasures. We can stop settling for and pretending we enjoy whatever our partner “brings to the table” (or the floor, the bed, the shower...whatever tickles your fancy).

The time has come to strip down and freely expose our inner nakedness and allow our King to fully enjoy every inch of our delectable, pleasuring-seeking flesh with all its magnificent parts, dips, and curves! If this relationship is new, sexual intercourse happens more frequently. However, if you have been together for several years, you may have noticed a decrease in the frequency of your lovemaking. Well, now is the time for a refresher course; time to rediscover and rekindle what drew you together in the first place.

My fellow classy Queens, if we hesitate or refuse to express our sensual freedom, we are only holding back the sexy vixen inside. Yes, we ALL have an inner sexual vixen who yearns to break free from the confines of “normalcy” or societal acceptance when it comes to sexual exploration. Her inner fire needs and longs to be rekindled, stoked, and set ablaze frequently and with much power and vigor. The anticipation, excitement, and pleasure increase when you get your sex life out of a routine. Be open to engaging in new positions in different locations. Make sure your King or Queen trust that they are worthy of your time, attention, and energy.

My classic Kings, when you refuse to let your Queen know what you desire sexually, you leave yourselves feeling sexually unsatisfied and you force her to engage in what is known as vanilla sex. You may feel content with whatever sexual acts you engaged in, but you are only settling (no one should settle in any area of life). If you want her to swing from the chandelier and land with her legs around your neck, speak it out loud TO HER, not to your friends. Hey, I doubt if she will go for that (for safety reasons) but at least she heard and listened to your desire. This does not give you grounds to seek and participate in any level of sexual pleasure elsewhere. Instead, you should respect your Queen's sexual boundaries and work within them to show you truly love her.

When you have a crush on someone, you want to be close to them all the time. They are always on your mind. You smile at the slightest thought of them or the mention of their name. Your body tingles with each touch of their hand...or any body part. If they stroll past and give a quick wink or smile, your insides melt. Give your Queen or King this feeling over and over. Cause them to be crushing on you...hard...all the time!

Your vixen or stud desires to cross that threshold to quench their sexual appetite; an appetite that has been starved and gone unfulfilled for far too long. This strong desire for exploring your sexual fantasies has been ignored and pushed down for so long, it is now mistaken for contentment or complacency. The two of you were created to live as sexual beings but your sex life is in desperate need of resuscitation before it is too late! Well, help has arrived! Break out the electric paddles and bring your inner sex God and Goddess back to life.

This brings us to intimacy, more specifically emotional intimacy, which is defined as “as instinctive desire to bond to a lover, to feel comfort, to be known...comes from affection, from sharing feelings, from being vulnerable” (Orloff, 2014, p. 211). We are not meant to inhibit ourselves or place limitations on freedom of expression...not even with our sexual needs. Being open with yourself and your partner creates an environment of complete freedom. Live on your sexual terms.

As children, we are taught, directly or indirectly, to bury our emotions so deep within that we forget they are there. We are discouraged from sharing them with anyone, no matter the situation. When others look at and interact with us, they only see the mask we placed on the surface of our life. However, if you invest in your emotional well-being, there will be no obstacles to developing a safe environment for sharing your emotions with your partner. You are free to live a life of “being,” not just one of “doing.” This will then flow into your relationship.

Note from the Confidence Queen:

Thank you for connecting with me! I look forward to us sharing, learning from, and inspiring one another on this journey of Sisterhood. If this snippet of Sensual Seduction Humans Crave resonated with you on any level of your journey to increase communication and enhance intimacy (and I hope it did), contact me for more using the information below.

The future is yours for the taking Queen...

Straighten your crown...

Get your heels...

Stroll through your Queendom...

Cathy L. Webb

The Confidence Queen

www.mrscathywebb.com

info@mrscathywebb.com