Meet the Radisaurs!

Half a Dinosaur + Half an Animal = The Radisaurs!

Grover
(triceratops + mouse = triceramouse)

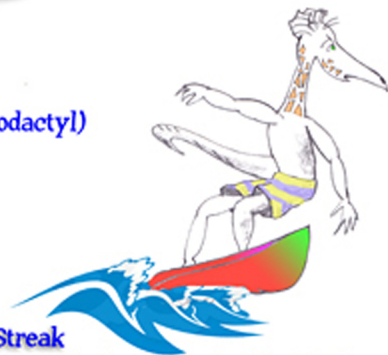

Loogey
(squirrel + pterodactyl = squirrodactyl)

Auna
(brontosaurus + bumble bee = brontobee)

Hayward Beardsley (tyrannosaurus rex + hippopotamus = tyrannopotamus)

Streak
(giraffe + velociraptor = giraffiraptor)

T-Bone
(stegosaurus + elephant = stegophant)

Scout
(plesiosaurus + grasshopper = plesiohopper)

Auna's phone kept singing as she continued to soar.
Her friends sending comments too fun to ignore.

They talked about movies, french fries, brothers, sisters, music, cartoons, and shoes that caused blisters.

The phone in her hand is all Auna sees,
as she's flapping her wings and pushing on keys.

Below on the beach the boys shredded some waves,
they enjoyed crashing breakers, they loved the sun's rays.

T-Bone ripped through a barrel while Streak showered spray.
The surfing was awesome, a great day to play.

There were no phones to answer; and no sending text.
What mattered the most was which wave to test!

Auna missed the waves and the feel of the sand.
She was content with a phone in her hand.

The very next day the crew met at the lanes.
They wanted to laugh and bowl a few games.

While the boys ate some pizza and ordered soft drinks,
Auna was surfing to find some cool links.

Up on the lane, T-Bone stared at the pins,
while the boys stared at him with really big grins.

"Pretty chill," Auna thought as she stared at her screen, while playing a game with a girl named Colleen.

She failed to see T-Bone hurling the ball, trying his best to make all the pins fall.

T-Bone's pins crashed!
Then Streak made pins soar!
Loogeey rolled a spare which increased his score.

When Auna's turn came she continued to sit,
showing no interest in strikes, spares or splits.
