THE HOUR HAS COME 3-DAY LENTEN RETREAT No doubt the Bible is a revelation of God and God's relationship with humanity. However, it's not the only revelation, nor the first revelation of God. The first act of divine revelation is creation itself. The first Bible is the Bible of nature. It was written 13.8 billion years ago at that moment we call the Big Bang. A contemporary spiritual writer said, "Don't dare put the second Bible in the hands of people who have not sat lovingly at the feet of the first Bible." Wherever you have Spirit and matter coming together you have the Christ. Jesus the Christ is not just the incarnation of God in a Jew from Galilee. Jesus is the cosmic Christ who was (from the moment of the Big Bang), who is, and who is to come (Rev. 1:4). He came to reshape the earth and to save it as well. All of it! He said, "I give my flesh for the life of the world." Let's spend some time together in respect, admiration, and in awe of God's ongoing revelation. Join us in retreat (in English) at St. Bernard's church each evening (Tues. March 28—Thurs. March 30) at 7 p.m. Contact karen.diocese@gmail.com

THE CALL OF THE CATECHIST WEBINAR SERIES The CCCB's National Office for Evangelization and Catechesis is offering a series of three free webinars for those involved in the ministry of catechesis. CARITAS CANADA

Standing for the land in Honduras

Honduras’s diverse ecosystems, fertile lands and rich natural resources attract many profiteering enterprises that overexploit the land to no benefit for local communities.

Development and Peace — Caritas Canada supports Equipo de Reflexión, Investigación y Comunicación (ERIC, Reflection, Research and Communication Team), an organization that helps communities in their struggle for land and territory and investigates human rights abuses.

This Lent, meet our solidarity visitor Elvin Hernández, a human rights investigator at ERIC. Learn more at devp.org/lent.

THE MONCTON DIOCESAN COUNCIL OF DEVELOPMENT AND PEACE

Invites you to meet Raquel Soto, a Colombian partner of Development and Peace, as part of her tour of Quebec and New Brunswick.

During this meeting, which will take place at the Place Cathédrale community hall (224 Saint-George Street) on Monday, March 27th from 11L:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m., Raquel Soto, 31 years old and animator of a School of Documentary Creation, will tell us how her journey with the Asociación Campesina de Antioquia (Peasant Association of Antioquia - ACA, Colombia) has allowed her to live again after having experienced violence and displacement.

This association, a partner of Development and Peace-Caritas Canada, provides Raquel and the women of her community with resources to preserve and pass on their traditional life as rural women. The meeting with Raquel is a wonderful opportunity to talk face-to-face with a Development and Peace partner and learn more about the mission of this international solidarity organization and its humanitarian work around the world.

Please note that Raquel speaks Spanish and her presentation will only be translated into French.

To help us set up the room for the event, we would appreciate it if you could let us know by Friday, March 24th by phone at 506 801-0440 or by email at dpatlantique@devp.org.

We look forward to seeing you at this event!

A light lunch will be provided.

In addition, Raquel will be speaking at mass at Christ-Roi on Tuesday March 28th at 9:00 and at the Cathedral on Wednesday March 29th at 9:00.

Pope Francis invites us today to reflect on how we discuss these issues, the challenges and different perspectives we need to acknowledge.

II. DIALOGUE FOR NEW NATIONAL AND LOCAL POLICIES

176. There are not just winners and losers among countries, but within poorer countries themselves. Hence different responsibilities need to be identified. Questions related to the environment and economic development can no longer be approached only from the standpoint of differences between countries; they also call for greater attention to policies on the national and local levels.

177. Given the real potential for a misuse of human abilities, individual states can no longer ignore their responsibility for planning, coordination, oversight and enforcement within their respective borders. How can a society plan and protect its future amid constantly developing technological innovations? One authoritative source of oversight and coordination is the law, which lays down rules for admissible conduct in the light of the common good. The limits which a healthy, mature and sovereign society must impose are those related to foresight and security, regulatory norms, timely enforcement, the elimination of corruption, effective responses to undesired side-effects of production processes, and appropriate intervention where potential or uncertain risks are involved. There is a growing jurisprudence dealing with the reduction of pollution by business activities. But political and institutional frameworks do not exist simply to avoid bad practice, but also to promote best practice, to stimulate creativity in seeking new solutions and to encourage individual or group initiatives.

178. A politics concerned with immediate results, supported by consumerist sectors of the population, is driven to produce short-term growth. In response to electoral interests, governments are reluctant to upset the public with measures which could affect the level of consumption or create risks for foreign investment. The myopia of power politics delays the inclusion of a far-sighted environmental agenda within the overall agenda of governments.

Thus we forget that “time is greater than space”,^[130] that we are always more effective when we generate processes rather than holding on to positions of power.

True statecraft is manifest when, in difficult times, we uphold high principles and think of the long-term common good. Political powers do not find it easy to assume this duty in the work of nation-building.

180. There are no uniform recipes, because each country or region has its own problems and limitations. It is also true that political realism may call for transitional measures and technologies, so long as these are accompanied by the gradual framing and acceptance of binding commitments. At the same time, on the national and local levels, much still needs to be done, such as promoting ways of conserving energy. These would include favouring forms of industrial production with maximum energy efficiency and diminished use of raw materials, removing from the market products which are less energy efficient or more polluting, improving transport systems, and encouraging the construction and repair of buildings aimed at reducing their energy consumption and levels of pollution. Political activity on the local level could also be directed to modifying consumption, developing an economy of waste disposal and recycling, protecting certain species and planning a diversified agriculture and the rotation of crops. Agriculture in poorer regions can be improved through investment in rural infrastructures, a better organization of local or national markets, systems of irrigation, and the development of techniques of sustainable agriculture. New forms of cooperation and community organization can be encouraged in order to defend the interests of small producers and preserve local ecosystems from destruction. Truly, much can be done!

181. Here, continuity is essential, because policies related to climate change and environmental protection cannot be altered with every change of government. Results take time and demand immediate outlays which may not produce tangible effects within any one government’s term. That is why, in the absence of pressure from the public and from civic institutions, political authorities will always be reluctant to intervene, all the more when urgent needs must be met. To take up these responsibilities and the costs they entail, politicians will inevitably clash with the mindset of short-term gain and results which dominates present-day economics and politics. But if they are courageous, they will attest to their God-given dignity and leave behind a testimony of selfless responsibility. A healthy politics is sorely needed, capable of reforming and coordinating institutions, promoting best practices and overcoming undue pressure and bureaucratic inertia. It should be added, though, that even the best mechanisms can break down when there are no worthy goals and values, or a genuine and profound humanism to serve as the basis of a noble and generous society.
