

05-09-18 Wednesday Musing

It has been a busy time since last Wednesday. On Friday we hosted our annual Spaghetti Supper in conjunction with the Alamance Council for the Blind. Our numbers were down a little this year but it was still a successful event with good food, fellowship and entertainment. Many thanks to all who helped, especially Mike Smith who coordinated and oversaw our whole effort. And there is plenty of spaghetti sauce left. You can pick some up after worship in the church kitchen for $8 per quart.

On Sunday afternoon, we held a funeral service for Mollie Blum. It was well attended by community members as well as church members, family and friends. Please continue to keep Mollie's family in your prayers along with Kevin May during these emotionally difficult times. Also, many thanks to the Women's Fellowship who provided a wonderful buffet for family and guests.

This coming Sunday is Mother's Day. There will be a specially crafted gift presented to each woman present for our service. Also, we have begun a special project initiated by the deacons. In the parlor you'll find several framed pictures of women who have been significant in the life of church members. It's not too late to add a picture of your own to our growing collection. And be sure to take a moment to see them all.

Inside the door to the Bray Fellowship Hall, you'll see a new display from the Deacon's Mission Committee. Check it out when you drop off food for Allied Churches.

Gayle Watson has moved. Her new address is 2709 Monticello Court, Burlington, NC, 27215. Her mailing address is PO Box 590, Burlington, 27216. Also, we are putting the finishing touches on our new and improved (and corrected) church directory. Look for them in the very near future.

On the prayer concern front, Mark Garrison is improving. He was able to come to both the Spaghetti Supper and worship this past Sunday, but he is still very weak. Troy and Peggy Johnson's daughter's eye surgery went well last week. Her condition has improved significantly as a result of the surgery. When Gayle Watson dropped off her new address, she asked for prayers for her brother, Scott. He continues to battle cancer and his condition appears to be worsening.

Last week, I asked for prayers for Bob Glenn's son-in-law, Bryan. Unfortunately, his condition worsened significantly and he has passed away. Please keep his wife, Becky, in your prayers.

In addition, please continue to remember in prayer: Anna Gerow, Vera Reeder, Louise Walters, Donna Freeman, Nancy Thomas, Parkie King and Faye Strickland.

Hope to see you Sunday.
