

Dawn

Written by Melba Regina Robnett, date unknown

Have you ever gazed around you
At the rising sun of dawn,
And have you sensed that
Peaceful quietness
Of a new day just begun
The crowing of the rooster,
And the dew drops on the green,
And all the morning glory's
Welcome you again. Yes
It is God's creation of love
For you and me.

Note: Written by Melba Regina (Williams) Robnett. Mrs. Robnett was the mother of Carolyn (Robnett) Bierman, who tells us after her mother's divorce, and "with no support from her husband and four children to raise, my mother took a job as a silkpresser at Fleming Cleaners in Centralia, Illinois, where she worked until she retired. It was often said by many that Mom had twinkling eyes. Maybe that's why she saw 'Dawn' in a different light."
