Red Mountain: Red is an up and coming but still old school ski hill in BC with 110 runs on 3850 acres, and 2915 feet of vertical spread out over 3 mountains. Red averaged 300" of snow per year. It has been featured in last year's Warren Miller movie and TGR's documentary about the Jackson Hole Air Force. This is NOT a massive mega-resort but a real ski hill with some very real skiing. High speed quads? Nope. But there is cat skiing for $10 CAD! 18% beginner, 31% intermediate, 23% advanced, 28% expert with lots of great tree skiing. Check out the state and some videos here: <http://www.redresort.com>.

Whitewater: White is lesser known area ~1.5 hours from Red. They have 82 named runs over 1184 acres with 2044 of vertical. Snowfall averages 40 FEET per year! 10% beginner, 32 blue, 47% Black, 11% double black. Powder Magazine calls Whitewater "one of the best powder mountains on the continent" and Ski Canada has rated Whitewater as having the Best Deeps, Best Bowls, and Best Glades. Check it out at: <https://www.skiwhitewater.com/>

49 North: Never heard of it? Me either! 82 trails, 2325 acres, 1851 vertical and 301" of average snowfall. I have been personally assured that this is a little gem worth checking out by a member who lives "out there". Have a look at: <http://www.ski49n.com/>

Lodging: We'll be staying 6 nights at the Prestige Mountain Resort in Rossland BC. This is in town and we will shuttle to the hill. Breakfast is included. Here is the web site:
<https://www.prestigehotelsandresorts.com/locations/rossland/location-contact-information/>

The final night will be at the Wingate Spokane Airport Motel so we can get early flights (hopefully) and avoid 2AM wakeups... If you have any left over energy, there is a casino a couple blocks away!

How does this all work? We fly to Spokane, stay in Rossland, and have 4 days of skiing there. There will be a 1 day bus trip to Whitewater. On Friday, the last day, we will check out early and go to 49North on the way back to Spokane.

How do we get there? We have the following block of air reserved:

14 air seats Pittsburgh to Spokane on American Airlines

March 14- American #892 Pittsburgh to Dallas 605 am-800 am
American #430 Dallas to Spokane 905 am-1051 m

March 21 – American #1774 Spokane to Dallas 145 pm-718 pm
American #403 Dallas to Pittsburgh 820 pm-1159 pm

Hopefully better/less expensive/more direct flights will become available so this should change. Currently our air is $610 and our return flights get us back pretty late. There is always an "air jam" at this time of year as groups reserve, and drop, air as we plan our trips. There is a big problem with the 737 situation that has taken a lot of flights down, and Southwest Airlines has not yet posted their offerings for March. The air will in all probability improve as this "air jam" clears, the 737s get back in service and Southwest's seats hit the market. We will be seeking flights from PIT, CLE, CAK, ERI and BUF and will change at the discretion of the trip leader when new options become available. PLEASE BE AWARE of this as you will need to arrive at the Spokane airport before the main group arrives, and that time is subject to change. Do not book your own flights until this settles out! Individual air can also be booked through the club or on your own.
