

Reaching out thru ADVOCACY and NETWORKING

As a staunch health advocate, HAIN manifests its active involvement in various advocacy campaigns by providing research, information and training assistance to different organizations leading the campaigns.

Policy advocacy is a major endeavor. HAIN participates in consultation, workshops and public hearings on important health issues conducted by the World Health Organization, Department of Health and Philippine Congress.

HAIN is an active member of Health Action International, the International People's Health Council and serves as the secretariat of the People's Health Movement in the Philippines. These international links have strengthened HAIN's partnership with local and international organizations which help forge stronger and more united efforts towards the achievement of its goals.

Transforming LIVES

Hain was established in 1985 as an information, training and research center for Community Based Health Programs (CBHPs) in the Philippines focusing on Primary Health Care and access to health by the poor.

HAIN has developed training modules on various health issues. To date, HAIN maintains a resource center, conducts training, education activities and research throughout the country.

HAIN serves the research, advocacy, information and education needs of the Philippines and international agencies working in health and development. HAIN's advocacy for people's health is strengthened by its wide network of local and international agencies working in health and health related concerns.

HAIN is a Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) registered non-profit organization since 1985 and accredited by the Philippine Center for NGO Certification (PCNC) since 2002. The organization is being managed by a Board of Trustees with regular and voluntary technical staff implementing various projects and programs.

INFORMATION FOR EMPOWERMENT

Managing Information for Health and Development

25 years
of Empowering Communities
through Health Information

A SEC Registered and PCNC Accredited
Non-Government Organization

Empowering COMMUNITIES

VISION

A society where social, cultural, economic, and political conditions enable people to enjoy their basic human rights and realize their full potentials

MISSION

To contribute to the empowerment of people and communities by making available and accessible objective, accurate and timely information on health and health related issues

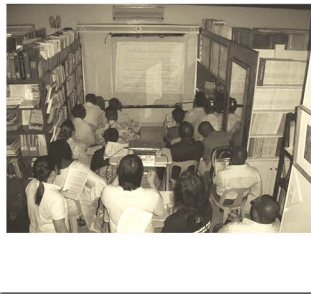

GOALS

To have people and communities with increased awareness and capacity to analyze and respond to health and health-related issues and problems

To develop functional, effective and efficient mechanisms for organizational operations

RESOURCE CENTER

The HAIN Resource Center's collection has grown rapidly through the years and now has more than 4000 volumes of printed materials and subscription to some 150 periodicals.

Aside from printed materials, HAIN has a growing collection of audio visuals, e-files (databases on compact discs, downloaded files) and online database access.

The Resource Center's collection also boasts of gray literature such as thesis and dissertations, manuscripts, and reports of past and current medical professionals and other experts in the field.

These materials are sourced all over the world, majority of which comes from the Asia-Pacific region.

WEBSITE

With the dawn of the internet age, HAIN's line of work becomes more visible and accessible around the globe.

One can now access relevant, timely and accurate information about health, training schedules, recent publication, latest projects and events, ways to get involved and/or volunteer, plus HAIN's e-library with just one click.

www.hain.org

HAIN is recognized in the health community as one of the leading source of accurate, timely, well-researched, and in-depth qualitative and quantitative analysis of diverse health related issues.

HAIN takes pride in its extensive and innovative research collection conducted over the years that help HAIN establish its reputation as an information hub for NGOs, LGUs, academicians, students and other organizations.

These materials are used in HAIN's training and education programs as well as in the various advocacies and studies of HAIN's local and international partners.

PUBLICATION

Thousands of individuals and organizations have benefited from HAIN's numerous publications. It provides an analytical perspective, practical, up-to-date, relevant and accurate health information for health, community and education workers in Asia and the Pacific.

Over the years, HAIN produced widely circulated health teaching materials such as newsletters, books and monographs on various topics:

- ☐ HIV/AIDS/STI
- ☐ Rational Drug Use
- ☐ Operations Research
- ☐ Resource Center Management
- ☐ Advocacy

RESEARCH

TRAINING ACADEMY

The Training Academy was formed to serve as a learning hub for developing new methodologies and strategies, and in utilizing technology for simplified teaching of different health issues in the community.

HAIN conducts training programs to enhance capacity development for advocacy, research and training that would hone leaders to become valuable health educators and advocates. Training workshops for grassroots and communities are similarly conducted to impart to the people the knowledge, attitudes and skills that are necessary in improving the people's health situation.

This provides the opportunity for HAIN to propagate its framework in health education which places emphasis on a holistic primary health care approach where socio-economic and political factors are regarded as highly important to attain quality state of health.
