FUR TRAPPERS' ENCAMPMENT

A Living History Demonstration

Take a walk back through time as you visit an authentic fur trappers' encampment.

Come see costumed reenactors portray the lifestyle, work and customs of the fur trade.

How did they dress? What did they eat and how was it cooked? What was life like in a camp? How do you set a trap for beaver? How do you load and fire a flint lock rifle?

In this camp you will be able to ask these very questions and see for yourself in this hands-on living history demonstration. Why, even try your hand at the knife and tomahawk throw.

Champoeg State Heritage Area : Riverside Day Use

FOR SALE

.58 cal. Full Stocked Custom Hawken Rifle for Sale.

Built by Famous Muzzleloader writer and expert Mike Nesbitt in 2013

9lb. 3 oz. X 52 ½ -inches long.

36-inch Rice Barrel 1-inch across the flats. 1 in 66-inch twist.

Davis lock, L&R triggers, Non-Hook breech by Cherry Corners.

In 2016 I took the rifle totally apart. Refinished the stock for a proper wood to metal fit and stained it a period correct color. I re-browned all the metal work for a more period correct finish. The lock was tuned and polished, so it works to perfection. Marbles Fiber Optic front sight and folding rear sight (period correct ones also come with the rifle).

After speaking to Mike Nesbitt it has been determined (to the best of my ability) that less than 200 balls have ever been shot through this rifle and the bore is like new. Recently this rifle was appraised at $1,250.00

If you purchase this rifle I will offer for sale all the accessories I have for this fine rifle. They are:

Period correct powder horn, Badger pelt possible bag (the Badger pelt alone for this cost over $100.00) or a Moose hide “double bag”, Custom made elk horn short starter, Hornady round balls for this rifle, Custom made horn powder measure, .58 cal. jags, spare nipple, 2 loading blocks and patch knife.

NOTE: these accessories have a value of over $300.00/$250.00 (depending on the bag).

Jedediah Strong Smith (January 6, 1799 – May 27, 1831),

Was a clerk, frontiersman, hunter, trapper, author, cartographer, and explorer of the Rocky Mountains, the North American West, and the Southwest during the early 19th century. After 75 years of obscurity following his death, Smith was rediscovered as the American whose explorations led to the use of the 20-mile (32 km)-wide South Pass as the dominant point of crossing the Continental Divide for pioneers on the Oregon Trail.

Coming from a modest family background, Smith traveled to St. Louis and joined William H. Ashley and Andrew Henry's fur trading company in 1822. Smith led the first documented exploration from the Salt Lake frontier to the Colorado River. From there, Smith's party became the first United States citizens to cross the Mojave Desert into what is now the state of California but which at that time was part of Mexico. On the return journey, Smith and his companions were likewise the first U. S. citizens to explore and cross the Sierra Nevada and the treacherous Great Basin Desert. In the following year, Smith and his companions were the first U. S. explorers to travel north from California (on land) to reach the Oregon Country. Surviving three Native American massacres and one bear mauling, Jedediah Smith's explorations and documented travels were important resources to later American westward expansion.
