

Little Trees Pediatric Therapy provides a wide range of therapeutic intervention.

Areas of service provided include:

- Early Intervention - early start services in your home, day care, and other community based locations that provide high quality therapy and parent support and education.
- Infant Development - being a new parent can feel overwhelming. Services are available that provide consultation and support in your home that help you to identify your baby's own unique sensory needs, improve your ability to soothe your baby, and provide activities and exercises to stimulate development of important milestones.
- Feeding - family is the center of mealtime, family and caregivers are seen as active participants in their child's feeding therapy sessions. Currently, feeding therapy is completed in the child's natural environment which supports progress and generalization of the treatment plan.
- Self-Regulation - maintaining self-regulation to participate in challenging activities and handle frustrations is an important milestone and supports progress and achievement in all other areas of development. There are strategies your child can learn to help them develop the skills to self-regulate.
- Handwriting - handwriting supports performance in the classroom, independence with homework at home, and promotes academic success. Intervention can improve handwriting and identify any reasons for the difficulties, as well as any necessary adaptive equipment or modifications.
- Sensory Processing - sensory processing difficulties can effect a child's life in their day to day routines and activities. These difficulties can result in difficult behaviors and a stressed out family! Support your child's functioning in their everyday routine at home by identifying your child's and family's unique sensory needs and challenges and implement personalized sensory strategies and identify tools to meet your child's sensory needs.
- Self-Care Independence - developing independence in activities of daily living is an important milestone for all children, regardless of diagnosis. These skills include dressing, hygiene, toothbrushing, cooking and more.
- Therapeutic Listening® - a music based tool that helps with sensory processing, listening, attention, and communication.
- School Observations - observation of your child in their school environment to assist with development of IEP goals.
- IEP Review - review of your child's IEP to assist in goal development.
- Consultation - to other care providers in your child's life, to help with generalization of therapy strategies and techniques to support the child in all environments.
- Parent Workshops - to provide parent education in areas of development that foster your child's growth.
