

I'm no longer content that the Holy Spirit has so little power in my church life. It's absolutely clear to me that Paul expected supernatural powers in the Church after baptism and that this experience was to continue throughout all generations. God is glorified by miracles done through Christ. "Now to him who is able to do immeasurably more than all we ask or imagine, according to his power that is at work within us, to him be glory in the church and in Christ Jesus throughout all generations, for ever and ever! Amen" (Eph 3:20-21). God glorified in the Church; by power displayed by Christ in the Church for all ages. That's about as clear as can be. Churches exist today where miracles routinely occur. Are we wise to learn nothing from them because of some scriptural uncertainties while we're guilty of rejecting such a clear expectation of Scripture? All for Jesus, Richard
