Lydia is a principal at Mather Turanchik Law Corporation. Lydia previously was an associate and then partner with Kajan Mather and Barish and Mather Law Corporation for 10 years. Prior to joining Kajan Mather and Barish, Lydia spent seven years as a trial attorney with the United States Department of Justice, Tax Division, in Washington, D.C.

Lydia handles litigation and tax controversy matters against the United States Department of Justice, the Internal Revenue Service, the California state taxing authorities (including the Franchise Tax Board, the Board of Equalization, the California Department of Tax and Fee Administration, the California Office of Tax Appeals, and the Employment Development Division) and the L.A. City Office of Finance. She has handled tax disputes at all levels, including audit, appeal, settlement, litigation and collection. She is admitted to practice in California and Massachusetts (inactive) and is a member of the Bar of the Supreme Court of the United States, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, the U.S. District Court for the Central and Eastern Districts of California, and the United States Tax Court.

Lydia received an LL.M. in taxation from Boston University, her J.D. from Vermont Law School, where she was editor-in-chief of the Vermont Law Review, and her B.A. from Tufts University.

Lydia has also lectured on current tax controversy matters for the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA), State Bar of California, the CalCPA Education Foundation, the Los Angeles County Bar Association, the Beverly Hills Bar Association and the San Fernando Bar Association.
