

Hi Hw Ahh Ya!

Yes I know that's not how you say the phrase but being from Boston there are some things that rub off on you. I figured that this first article from me may be good to give you a background of where I am from and some of how I got here. I will not be going into my call story, of how God called me into being a pastor, but we can at least cover some of it and most of the places I have been.

I was born August 12th, 1993 in Anoka Minnesota. I lived in Anoka for three years before moving to my family's first house in Plymouth Minnesota. By that point my older brother and I had a little sister and we were still figuring each other out. We stayed in that house for five years before moving to another house in Plymouth that was close to a lake. I have so many fond memories of that house. Being able to swim, innertube, ski, wakeboard, kneeboard, canoe, and go to friends houses with trampolines (on the trampoline) was truly a wonderful time. Five years later my family moved all the way to a town called Marshfield in Massachusetts. It was a bit of a culture shock for us and there were some difficult times, but we weathered the Nor-Easters and fell in love with our new home. It was in Marshfield that I graduated High School, helped start an ELCA mission congregation (after being confirmed Missouri Synod), and truly felt my call into ministry.

At first I didn't want to go to college. I thought it was more a waste of money than anything else, but after some convincing by my parents I applied to different universities based upon the future job I wanted. As I visited the different universities I began to have a feeling as soon as I stepped onto the campus if it felt right or not. The only two that felt "right" for me were those that I was applying to do religious studies. After choosing Lenoir-Rhyne University on a coin toss, I began my four years of undergraduate studies to attain a BA in Religious Studies focusing in Youth and Family Ministries with a minor in Psychology. I truly enjoyed my time in North Carolina and learned so much from the wonderful people down there. However, my journey didn't end there or bring me back to Massachusetts.

I applied to the same Graduate studies program that my home pastor did, Masters of Divinity at Trinity University right in Columbus Ohio. I hit the ground running trying to shake off the relaxed year I had in my undergraduate (saved all the easy classes for the last year), and entered into the rigorous graduate program mindset. My professors, although kind and uplifting, were strict and demanded excellence from us. I appreciate all that they did to prepare us for ministry in the congregation. The unique draw to Trinity, for me, was that they have a two plus two program. This means that students do two years of academic work at Trinity and then two years of online work while in a congregation. This allows for the students to have great hands-on experiences and learn first hand far more than you can in only one year.

My internship site was located in Iowa and pulled me closer to where I grew up than I had been in 10 years. In my internship site I navigated my supervising pastor going on sabbatical, paternity leave, a renovation project, a flood of the basement, a global pandemic, questioning my own call to Word and Sacrament or Word and Service, and so much more. It prepared me for some, but not all of the challenges that come to a pastor, and but made me confident that I was on the right track. I then was called in 2020 to my first congregation in Illinois and served there for three years, during which time I met and married my wife Brittani and became the father of two wonderful boys Harper (9) and Niko (5). Brittani and the boys are from Weston Ohio and are very glad to be back closer to home and family. Mine is still quite spread out around the United States, but I am thankful to have my in-laws close by.

Well I think that is all for now but there is definitely more that I could share. However, I would love to get to know all of you as you know me. I look forward to our time together here at First Lutheran and how God will form us in our ministries to come!

Your brother in Christ,
Pastor Tucker O'Leary

Personal Prayer Time

As we look at Jesus' ministry we can notice a few things. He is usually around people, usually eating, and also he finds time to step away from the crowds to sit in prayer and silence. This is key in our daily lives to set time aside to refocus, to recenter, and to realign how we want to interact in our day. Far too often we can be pushed about by the emotions, driving forces, and deadlines of our lives that, end the day cranky, and on edge.

Taking time, even just a few minutes, to refocus on what matters to us can significantly alter our day. Starting July 10th the sanctuary will be open from 11:45 am -1:30 pm for members and people of our community to sit and refocus their day. To be in a sacred space and leave their worries and troubles at the cross. This invitation is not just for Christians, but for all who wish to have a safe space to practice their prayer practices. Please spread the word to your friends and colleagues so they can find rest and rejuvenation at our wonderful congregation.

The Sacred Daily

Sometimes it can be difficult for us to focus our thoughts, prayers, concerns, and feelings. This can be even more difficult when we are intentionally trying to do it during prayer. This is why faith groups around the world have created different methods to focus oneself.

In the Catholic tradition you may see people pray the rosary. In Buddhism or Hinduism it's the Jaap Maala, and in the Lutheran tradition we often have the Clinging Cross. All of these are physical items that someone can use to help focus their mind, heart, and spirit for the renewal practice of prayer.

This can also be accomplished through liturgy. If you would like to take about fifteen minutes out of your day to refocus using liturgy please join Pastor Tucker from 11:30 am - 11:45 am in the Memorial Chapel Monday through Thursday starting July 10th.

In the church there are multiple times that we can be called to prayer and worship. In a more traditional setting, like a monastic community, we are called into seven daytime canonical hours of prayer. These are; lauds (dawn), prime (sunrise), terce (mid-morning), sext (midday), none (mid-afternoon), Vespers (sunset), compline (retiring) and the nighttime canonical hour of vigil. We will be praying the Midday service or "Sext" through the perspective of the OLF (Order of Lutheran Franciscans). If this is something that you wish to join in on please meet over in the Memorial Chapel.

Adult Education Survey

Before we get into the "academic programing" in September I would like to know what your interests are as adults in this congregation for further study in our scriptures and christian identity. There will be a survey going on in August about different opportunities that can be offered during our 9:30 am educational time. Current ideas are; Beginning the journey to read through the entire Bible, Book Study, Lutheran Study, or inter-religious study. These may change before the survey goes out or more may be added! Stay tuned to the Foot Prints in August!

Time with Pastor Tucker

All are invited to join the fun!

One-on-One

Starting in July I would like to invite you to stop by the bulletin board and take a look at the new dry-erase calendar. This calendar will be filled with times that you and your family can set up one-on-one time with me! I really want to get to know the members of our wonderful congregation and learn where your hearts lay in our community and our ministry. So please, stop by and find a time for coffee or for dinner with me, maybe we can even find some midday office time to just sit and chat. I look forward to getting to know all of you as we prepare for the wonderful years of ministry ahead of us!

STEWARDSHIP

work!

Heartwarming stories of ministry through your generous stewardship!

Faithful Stewardship to me is sharing my musical gifts with First Lutheran Church each time I play the organ or accompany the choir on Sunday morning. Leading worship in this way is a humbling experience for me and you might say allows me to worship through my fingers.

I treasure my Christian friends I have made at First Lutheran Church and hold them very close to my heart. My prayer partners, Robin Bowman, Sue DeMoss and Jane Ebersole, support each other, as well as pray for those in our church family each week of the year. Prayer changes everything. Look around at what God has done at First Lutheran Church through prayer! Your attentiveness to stewardship and sharing your gifts has made all the difference.—Miriam Gibson

Trinity Lutheran Seminary

Columbus, Ohio

I started Seminary straight out of college in 2016 and was beyond excited to be colleagues with people who were from all different stages in life. Some were college grads like me and others who were in their second or third career. This blend of age group and experience aided in my spiritual growth beyond what I initially thought it would. It also allowed for wonderful opportunities to redefine how we view family and hierarchical structures. But most importantly was how we all were able to enjoy life through a new perspective again. Learning how to brew beer and at the same time have deep theological conversations. Setting up grill nights and playing catch with your colleagues' kids after they get home from school and have had difficulties with classmates. Providing a safe space for people of all walks of life to rest and return to God through study and reflection. Trinity had also implemented the two plus two program which is designed to give students two years of contextual education in the congregation. As a hands-on learner this was crucial for my formation and one of the largest driving forces that brought me to Trinity. Even with all these perks for Trinity, it was the people that really made the place.

I started seminary early so I could take the summer Greek intensive course. I am not great with languages and Greek is a very difficult one for me. I tried my best to learn in ways that I have before but it just wouldn't take. Pretty soon I was failing the class and no amount of charts and graphs and verb plot charts was helping. I mentioned it to my classmates and immediately three guys; Judd, Michael, and Corey pulled me into their group and helped me look at it in a new way. This is what Trinity is. A place where people are always reaching out to include and help. A Graduate studies program that feels more like a family, and what better way to teach pastors how to go out into the world to serve the people of God than to rigorously test them while teaching them to care for one another.

—Pastor Tucker

One Sunday many years ago a little boy came out after worship and stood staring at me as I greeted parishioners at the door of the church. His stare got my attention and caused me to look down on his curious face. He asked, "Are you God?" Needless to say I was startled and stymied, then I answered with a smile, "No, but I am one of his helpers."

After serving as an ordained pastor for almost 52 years, I have come to treasure my calling as a servant of the Lord as a Word and Sacrament minister. I am definitely not God (I don't have to tell you that!) but I represent the Lord in all I do and say. I came to realize that wherever I go, I represent the Church and when I visit the sick, the shut-ins and those in need, I bring the Spirit of Love and Joy with me. In a real sense people don't see me but see the Lord I represent.

I think back upon my student days at Trinity Seminary (then called Lutheran Theological Seminary) and thank the Lord for that special place. I remember especially my profs, men (there were no women back then) who had my respect as they were Ph.Ds and Th.Ds, dedicated pastors and capable leaders, but mostly who had my love because they taught and preached "As One Who Speaks for God**." Indeed, they were God to me. They were my mentors and teachers and have always inspired me to remember that I am called an Ambassador for Christ.

—Pastor Chris

Trinity Seminary [part of Capital University] is one of the seven ELCA seminaries across the country. Current enrollment is 85 with a faculty of seven. Students are engaged in four degree programs, including about half in the M. Div. program (preparing for ordained ministry). Our NWO synod congregations contribute $20,000 annually. In 2022-23, 375 students received over $3.5 million in scholarships.

LIBRARY NEWS

Welcome all to the July newsletter. Yesterday (June 11) we were blessed by 1.34 inches of rain in our area south of Findlay. What a joy. The smell. The sound. The ground soaking up much needed moisture. Life is good. Praise God.

Now I don't often read non-fiction. But this time I thoroughly absorbed Barbara Kingsolver's book of essays High Tide in Tucson—Essays from Now or Never (1995). Let's remind us who is Barbara Kingsolver. She authored the Poisonwood Bible (2005), which follows Nathan Price, a fierce evangelical Baptist who takes his wife and four daughters to the Belgian Congo in 1959. Over 30 years, the family tragically unfolds and is reconstructed. And now she just won the Pulitzer Prize for Demon Copperhead, a novel that mimics Dickens' David Copperfield highlighting the social ills of the late 1900's. She was raised in rural Kentucky and lived briefly in the Congo.

In her essay "Making Peace," she writes "Choose a cubic foot of earth, about anywhere that isn't paved, look closely enough, and you'll find that thousands of different kinds of living things are sharing that place, each one merrily surviving on something its neighbors couldn't use for all the tea in China." How often have we looked that closely at nature? Do we have any idea what really goes on in that microcosm of earth?

From this point in the essay, she accepts that other creatures are entitled to their spaces as well. Instead of landscaping a desert territory where she lives, she "abdicates" her throne as the one in charge of her microcosm. Now she feeds the wild creatures, becoming a part of her landscape. Instead of flowers, she plants what the land will let her and the lands inhabitants eat.

Kingsolver discusses parenting in "Civil Disobedience at Breakfast". She claims the hardest job of parenting is to clarify the difference between boundaries and bondage. She considers the boundaries she once set for her children to be purely for her own convenience.

Then there is this piece of philosophy concerning our place in the bigger scope of things: "To love life, really, must mean caring not only for the garden plot but also the wilderness beyond the fence, beauty and mystery for their own sake, because of how meager a world would be without them." I think about the Sunday past when four children under 8 years old donned boots, swimsuits and carried little nets and waded through Eagle Creek behind our neighbor's farm. They caught all kinds of critters. Then they came home and read through the "Ohio Division of Wildlife Stream Fish of Ohio" and identified all that they had found including the water snake! I understand what Kingsolver means by "the beauty and mystery of the wilderness." These four were fascinated with their version of the wilderness.

I love her comments on fiction writing in "Jabberwocky." Think about the following concept. In reading a novel, any novel, we have to know perfectly well that the whole thing is nonsense, and then, while reading, believe every word of it. Finally, when we're done with it, we find that we're a bit different from what we were before we read it, that we have been changed a little. The artist deals with what cannot be said in words. The novelist says in words what cannot be said in words. I like the paradox.

God bless and keep reading. Kathy Brooks (kathleenbrooks15@gmail.com)

★ Dear Boys and Girls,

★ Thank you so much for the wonderful surprise birthday box full of candies and homemade birthday cards. It was so nice of you to remember me but I do believe my Aunt Bev probably had a little something to do with it. She likes to surprise people too. I loved all your cards and drawings. I can get candy on the ship but not all my favorites, so it was great to have some of my all time favorites!

★ I was just in Belgium a few weeks ago. We're on our way to some where else, but I can't tell you where we are going until we get there or possible on way home.

★ Thank you for praying for me and all of my Sailors. All of our Sailors and Soldiers need prayers for safety. We will pray for you too.

We have an exciting opportunity to tell you about. First Lutheran Church is now a participating charity that can benefit from Kroger's Community Rewards program. Kroger donates to local charities each quarter. You designate a charity through your shopper's card and a percentage of your spending goes to your designated charity. This does not affect your Fuel Rewards.

We hope that the congregation finds this to be an easy and fun way to share in our church's mission of bringing our community one step closer to God. For more information, or how to sign up, contact Rob Leipheimer or a Social Committee member

Food Cart Requests

Toothbrushes/Paste, any Condiments

All donations benefit
Lutheran Social Services.

Stuff the Bus

July 27 – 29.

There will be the famous "blue box" set up in the hallway with a list of items needed for the school year. Please help as you can.

The 2023 Flower Chart is up in the hallway, across from the church office. There are many Sundays that still need flowers to brighten not only the altar, but also either your home or the home of a shut-in. Please consider this ministry as a way to share God's love for His people.

Church Organ Update

It is with great joy we announce that the campaign to raise funds to replace the current organ have been very successful. The proposal for the replacement organ was $194,968. As of Sunday, June 18, we have raised $205,300. We may now possibly include the moving console platform, proposal price is $2,250, to make it easier to move the organ around in the choir loft.

With the fundraising complete, we can now move forward to:
