A Note from Rick: The dog days of summer are officially here and the weather was hot, but the market was not. The feeder sale this week was steady along with the butcher cows. We had some good groups of feeders to choose from and I thought they sold very well. They have been consistent for the last several months and I don't see any reason for that to change until something happens to shake this up. Butcher steers were a little weaker again along with the bull calves. I think this is something that will change. It's hot, its fair season, and no one has any reason to be excited about putting calves in right now. This is the mid-summer lull that is not surprising and hopefully these markets will bounce back in the near future. Construction is moving along nicely. We will be in our new office next week. The big building doesn't look like much, but the foundation and prep work takes time. A lot is happening, just not what you can see. We are getting to ready to gear up for horse season. We have several consignment and catalog deadlines coming up and are looking forward to opening the doors of the new sale arena. See you at TLA!
