 Gospel: Luke 11: 1-13

“Learning to pray”

Prayer is a theme that runs all throughout the Gospel of Luke. It is something that keeps Jesus on course through his journey. It is what focuses his vision. For him, prayer acknowledges our dependence on our “Abba” (a special term of endearment Jesus uses to name our Parent-God) in the present and for our future. Words and language are important only insofar as they lead us to understand the Reality. Jesus’ answer to His followers about prayer is very simple: He has told us about His Father. We praise His name, we ask, we seek, and we knock at the door in full confidence knowing He will answer our needs. And we love one another and forgive one another as He has already loved and forgiven us. This is an awful lot to unpack from such a short prayer..

Today’s Gospel is rich in images and meaning. Much can be lost if we simply focus on our own needs and requests. It is far too easy for us, confined by human sensibilities and ideas to misjudge, misstep and misunderstand. But by praying as Jesus actually taught, we acknowledge our enduring need of God’s protection and solicit his help in making life-affirming choices and decisions.

Jesus never prays to a remote God or to a God “out there.” He prays to a loving “Abba”, and he encourages us to do the same. It takes courage to pray the Lord’s Prayer, to truly believe these familiar and yet radical words.
